Grand Jury Probes
Reports Other Notables Involved
TRIAL ON JAN. 24

Radio Comedian Is Released Under Bail
Of $1,000

New York—(AP)—A federal grand jury, which indicted comedian Jack Benny on smuggling charges, renewed today its investigation of reports that other notables were involved in widespread evasion of customs duties on jewelry and finery.

The 44-year-old radio and movie star was the latest of several New York and Hollywood figures brought into the inquiry by their association with Albert N. Chaperau, former convict, international adventurer and foreign film broker.

Chaperau—accused of conspiring to smuggle in trunks of valuable "trinkets" for prominent acquaintances—George Burns of the Burns and Allen radio team, and Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of a New York judge, also have been indicted.

Chaperau, pleaded guilty today to an indictment charging him and Benny with smuggling $2,131 worth of jewelry into this port Oct. 7.

Burns and Mrs. Lauer had pleaded guilty previously and Chaperau was convicted after Judge Murray Hulbert branded as fraudulent his contention that he was a commercial attaché for Nicaragua and therefore entitled to diplomatic immunity.

Benny Indignant
Benny, one of the nation's most highly-paid entertainers, flew from the west coast to testify voluntarily before the grand jury and appeared shaken and indignant after his indictment yesterday.

The cigar in his mouth—a comic trade mark with him—dropped perceptibly despite the cheers of scores of autograph hunters as he walked to Judge Hulbert's courtroom.

A few moments afterward the slender, gray-haired comedian pleaded innocent of charges of smuggling, concealing and transporting $2,131 worth of jewelry which investigators said was intended as a present for his wife, Mary Livingston.

Benny was released under $1,000 bail after he had been photographed and fingerprinted. He will be tried Jan. 24. The charges carry a maximum penalty of six years in prison and a $15,000 fine if he is convicted on all three counts.

Denies Smuggling
Brusquely dodging interviewers, Benny drove away after issuing a statement expressing amazement that he had been indicted in "the Chaperau affair."

"I have never smuggled any jewelry or anything else into this country, and no one can truthfully say or prove that I intentionally committed the acts of which I am charged," his statement said.

Benny then secluded himself at his hotel and left by plane last night for Hollywood.

The comedian—born Benny Kubacki, son of a Waupaca, Ill., storekeeper—is reported to have earned between $10,000 and $12,000 a week. He began his theatrical career 20 years ago as a theater doorman. Later he was a violinist.

Officials estimated the customs duties on the jewelry involved—two diamond-studded gold clips and a diamond-studded bracelet—would have been $700 to $800.

Chaperau still awaits trial on four other smuggling counts. Burns and Mrs. Lauer are expected to be sentenced at its conclusion.

British Chief Arrives for Rome Confabs

Mussolini, Count Ciano
Greet Prime Minister
Chamberlain

WILL PUSH CLAIMS

Italy Also to Oppose Putting
End to Spanish
Civil Conflict

Rome—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain came to Rome today to talk European appeasement with Premier Mussolini, who was known to intend to talk about his colonial claims on France.

Mussolini and his son-in-law and foreign ministers, Count Galeazzo Ciano, met Chamberlain and his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, at the railway station when they arrived at 4:17 p. m. (9:17 a. m., C. S. T.).

As the duce, smiling broadly, stepped forward to shake Chamberlain's hand, a military band struck up "God Save the King" and followed this with Italian and fascist party anthems.

A military guard of honor snapped to attention, presented arms and was reviewed by the British prime minister and his host.

The station was draped with British and Italian colors. Attending Mussolini were high government and party officials, including Achille Starace, secretary-general of the fascist party, and General Luigi Russo, chief of staff of the fascist militia.

Italian Demands
Before the British arrival an authoritative spokesman, sounded a warning that they would be expected to hear Italy's claims on France, that there must be no deal for ending the Spanish civil war, and that Germany and Italy stood steadfast together.

Virginia Gayda, who frequently expresses the Italian official view, wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that every chief of government who intends to pursue a policy of European cooperation should show "a clear understanding and calm and timely appraisal of the needs, interests and rights" of Italy and Germany.

British and Italian flags hung from windows and public buildings in honor of the visitors, but otherwise Rome displayed little holiday dress, in contrast with Jewish welcome given Reichsfuehrer Hitler on his visit last May.

British Cheer
Chamberlain, however, seemed moved by the warmth of the duce's reception. He wore formal morning clothes and carried his famous umbrella, while Mussolini and Ciano were clad in gray-green uniforms of commander and generals of the fascist militia.

Mussolini conducted Chamberlain over a red carpet to a special stand of honor on a platform, where they stood while Italian dignitaries and about 1,000 members of the British cabinet in Rome cheered.

Guests and hosts left the station through ranks of the duce's elite bodyguard, composed of towering blackshirts with death's head insignia on their caps, to signify that they had sworn to die if necessary in protecting their chief.

A fleet of automobiles carried the party through streets lined by troops and cheering Italians to the Villa Madama, the government's guest house.

MURPHY ASSAILED

Former Senator Pope
Wins Support for
TVA Directorship

Washington—(AP)—Administration members defended Frank Murphy in the house today during an attack on the new attorney general's sidown strike record.

Representative (R-Mich.) said election of Murphy "as legal adviser of the president means, if it means anything, that the president approves of a government by men, by expediency—not a government by law under the constitution."

"If the people of the country want that kind of government, Murphy's appointment should be confirmed," said Hoffman. "If they want a government by law, the appointment should be rejected."

Representative (R-Texas), the majority leader, heatedly asked Hoffman to cite "one instance in which Governor Murphy broke the law."

Opening a suitcase full of homemade weapons, Hoffman shouted: "Was Murphy enforcing the law when he allowed the strikers to have these?"

One by one, Hoffman waved a knotted rope, iron bludgeons and other improvised weapons, prompting Representative Kramer (D-Calif.) to inquire:

"What pawnshop did you get those things from?"

Hoffman said he obtained the weapons from Michigan state police.

Washington—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins told a senate committee today "if anybody has had an intimate experience with business during the last six years it has been myself."

Apparently nervous as he testified before a commerce subcommittee in behalf of his nomination for secretary of commerce, Hopkins was questioned closely considering his political background.

Replying to one question, he said he did not recollect registering as a Socialist in New York but did not wish to deny he had.

Outlining his qualifications for the commerce post, he called attention to his previous statements that "there is no conflict between government and business."

"If you ask about my qualifications to be secretary of commerce, it probably would be unbecomingly Turn to page 14 col. 6

Vernon Thomson Elected

Big Margin

FIGHT OVER SEATS
Organization Delayed by Dispute on Seating
Racine Man

Madison—(AP)—Vernon Thomson, 33-year-old Republican legislator from Richland Center, was elected speaker of the state assembly today by an overwhelming vote.

As the two houses of the sixty-fourth legislature organized and prepared to hear the message of Governor Julius P. Heil, most of the spectators were attracted to the assembly chamber where there is a fight pending over the seating of two members.

Thomson, who was the choice of the Republican caucus for the speakership, was elected by a vote of 68 to 29 over Paul Alfonsi, (P.) of Pence, speaker at the last session. The Democratic assemblymen voted for Thomson in a unit.

Two courtesy votes were cast for John Grobich, (P.), of Milwaukee, and Reuben W. Peterson, of Berlin, who had opposed Thomson for the endorsement of the caucus. Peterson's vote was cast by Thomson, for whom Peterson voted.

Harmony in Senate
The senate set up its session machinery without discord by the unanimous election of Senator E. J. Roelke, (R.), of Fenimore, as president pro-tem, and the naming of a Republican-Democratic committee to make regular committee assignments.

John J. Slocum, of Wausau, was named chief clerk of the assembly by a vote of 70 to 29 over Lester Johnson, of Waupun, clerk at the last session. Slocum is a Democrat and Johnson a Progressive.

Major Robert A. Merrill, of Eau Claire, safety engineer for the Northern States Power company, was elected sergeant at arms of the assembly. He defeated Gustave Rheingans, of Chippewa Falls, who held the office at the last session, by a vote of 71 to 27. Merrill is a Republican.

Vinson Chief Opposition to Joint Committee on Defense

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Sentiment for creation of a temporary joint committee of the house and senate to consider national defense is increasing rapidly as the time nears for the president to present his special message on defense.

From members of both sides of the house and senate come reports of growing belief that intelligent and balanced consideration of a general national defense program can best be achieved through a joint committee, embracing members of regular standing committees which ordinarily deal separately with naval and military affairs.

Taking note of this widespread interest in both houses, Congressman Melvin Maas of Minnesota, the ranking Republican member of the house naval affairs committee, has prepared a resolution to create such a committee.

Congressman Maas was in Marine corps aviation during the World war and is remembered in Washington for his cool nerve one afternoon several years ago when a crank in the house gallery waved a gun threateningly at the members in session on the floor below. While many members rushed to the cloakroom, Maas calmly crossed the floor toward the man in the gallery and called up to him to toss the gun down, which he did and Maas caught it. The military expert, Major Fielding Eliot, recently described Maas as outstanding among the more alert and informed members of the house naval affairs committee in questioning witnesses during the naval hearings a year ago.

This special joint committee proposed by Congressman Maas would consist of five members each from the house and senate naval and military committees—20 in all, each committee chairman to select his five members, three to be Democrats and two Republicans. The joint committee would elect its own chairman.

Chairman May of the house military affairs committee is understood to favor the plan, as is Senator Walsh, chairman of the senate naval affairs committee. Senator Sheppard, chairman of the senate military affairs committee, said yesterday he intended to lay the Maas proposal before his committee and would do whatever the committee wished. The real opposition comes from Chairman Vinson of the house naval affairs committee.

Military Committee Outranks Navy Group
Vinson has vague fears that his committee would suffer in some way. It is not clear how he could suffer because his naval affairs committee already is outranked by the military affairs committee. Any bill which so much as mentions the army, although it may primarily concern the navy, must go under the house rules, to the military committee instead of to Vinson's.

Furthermore, Congressman Maas does not intend that the joint committee which he proposes should supersede the regular standing committees. It would be advisory, charged with developing a coordinated program of defense, balancing all elements, correlating the army and navy, and producing recommendations in which congress and particularly the country, would have confidence.

Whenever war department officials discuss the needs of the army, they point out that these are conditioned by what the navy does. For instance, if a new naval outpost is to be established, the army must have additional forces to protect the shore establishment of the navy. Actually, the two branches are

Shawano County Is Held Liable For Eye Injury

Decision of Dane County Circuit Court Is Upheld at Madison

Shawano county was held liable by the supreme court at Madison Tuesday for payment of $3,333 in workmen's compensation to Nelson La Violette, Shawano county fisherman, for an injury suffered in a dance hall disturbance. The high court affirmed a decision of the Dane county circuit court.

La Violette was hurt May 17, 1933, when he assisted Robert Sigl, Shawano county dance hall inspector, in quelling a dance hall disturbance. This injury led to the loss of one eye.

The state industrial commission determined that La Violette was an employee of Shawano county at the time of the injury. This finding was affirmed by the Dane county circuit court and later by the supreme court, the latter tribunal remanding the case back to the commission to fix the compensation.

The commission ordered the county to pay La Violette $3,333. The Dane county circuit court, upon a second appeal, again affirmed the commission, and the county then appealed to the supreme court for the second time.

Farm Employment Is Holding Up in State

Madison—(P)—Employment on Wisconsin farms is holding its own compared to a year ago. January although the wage level is lower, the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States Department of Agriculture reported today.

For every 100 farms 212 persons are employed at an average of $23.25 per month with board, the service said. This compares with $24.75 a year ago.

Employment rose last fall as compared to 1937 because of the late harvesting season and unusually large crops. At present, however, farm work has returned to the usual winter routine, the report said.

Power Contract To be Explained At Mass Meeting

General Session Will be Held in Council Chambers Friday Night

Kaukauna—A mass meeting for discussion of the contract approved by the common council at a special session last Friday, with the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company, has been called by Mayor Lewis F. Nelson for 7 o'clock Friday evening in the council rooms.

The council's action in approving the agreement has created much discussion in the city. It is the intention of the meeting to explain the contract so that all may understand. The 9-page document was officially brought into the open for the first time last Friday; previously councilmen had discussed it at informal meetings with the utility commission.

Members of the utility commission and city officials have been invited by Nelson to attend the meeting.

Water Rights Trade

The contract was negotiated to give Kaukauna a 100 per cent flow of the Fox river for its hydro electric plant to be built at the former Patten mill site. The Canal company gives the city the right to use all the water after it has passed through the company's Badger plant in return the city gave to the Canal company the right to 32 per cent of the river's flow as it enters the pond held by the government dam.

Eight councilmen voted for the agreement, with only Aldermen Oscar Alger and Edward Steidl objecting. Passage of the agreement was recommended by the utility commission, H. F. Weckwerth, electric department superintendent, Joseph LeFevre, utility attorney and Mayor Lewis F. Nelson.

City Attorney Harry F. McAndrews recommended that the council reject the contract. He suggested that the various methods of generating electricity be investigated before the city tied up with the Canal company for any long period of time.

Kaws Favored to Defeat Truckers In League Contest

Northeastern Conference Game Will be Played At Clintonville

Kaukauna—Kaukauna High school cagers will continue their drive toward the top in Northeastern conference competition this Friday when they travel to Clintonville for a contest with the Truckers. For the first time this season the Kaws will be definite favorites, with the Truckers yet to win a conference game. Last year the Kaws whipped them twice.

The Clintonville game will close the first half of the schedule, with the second half opening here Jan. 20 against West DePere. The Kaws have won three and lost two, beating West DePere, New London and Menasha and losing to Shawano and Neenah, the two teams ahead of the Kaws in the standings.

A win for Kaukauna Friday night would give the Kaws a tie for second. Shawano in first place has racked up five straight wins and has yet to meet its match.

Bill Alger added five points in the New London game to give the Kaws for the season with 40 in six games. Carl Giordano put through seven more to give him a total of 24. Other Kaukauna players in the scorebook are Joe Bloch, 27; Don Bielek, 16; Junior Swedberg, 11; Paul Koch, 4; Willis Ranquette, 3, and Bob Derus, 2.

In six games the Kaws have rung up 127 points compared to their opponents' 140, for an average of 21 per game. Opponents have averaged 23. Twenty-eight points against Menasha is their top effort, and 16 against Shawano their worst.

Coach Paul E. Little probably will seize the Clintonville game as an opportunity to give his reserves some action, provided the regulars can pile up a safe lead. Last year the Kaws went to Clintonville and didn't get going until the closing minutes. Reserves who probably will see action are Paul Koch, Bill Tessen, Willis Ranquette, Andy Meitner, Jim Sanders and Bob Derus.

The President's Fiscal Theories

A close examination of the fiscal theories propounded by the President in his address to Congress will show that there were in fact two rather distinct and contradictory theories. It is not until one studies the figures he submitted in the budget message that one sees the reason for this contradiction.

In the address the President laid down two propositions, namely: 1. That the amount of the deficit should not be regarded as spending but as "Federal investment." While the President was developing his thesis, he insisted that this part of the total outlay was really a substitute for the lack of private investment. He argued that Federal investment was an "instrumentality" to be used in putting unemployed capital and unemployed labor to work. And in describing it as an "instrumentality," he implied that the government could use the instrument or not use it, could "invest" or not invest, depending on which seemed the wiser option.

But in his rebuttal against those who wish to curtail expenditures the President propounded a very different thesis, namely: 2. That "no great saving" is possible unless Congress will reduce drastically the agricultural subsidy, veterans' pensions, flood control, highways and other public works, social security, unemployment relief, or national defense. And Mr. Roosevelt made it perfectly plain that he would not, and that he did not think Congress would dare to, touch any of these items because, politically, it is impossible to touch them. In this part of the argument, therefore, the deficit is no longer an "instrumentality" which may or may not be employed; the deficit is a thing which is politically impossible to touch.

Thus proposition one, in regard to "Federal investment," would appear to be a theory invented to make everyone, including the President, believe that they are freely choosing to do what they are in fact compelled to do.

Proposition No. 2 is The Hard-Boiled Truth. The figures in the budget message show why proposition two, which was addressed to the politicians, is hard-boiled truth, whereas proposition one is a half-truth to soften the impact. The President's own figures show that in this fiscal year which ends on July 1, the deficit is virtually 4,000 millions whereas the total of the outlays that even he can charitably classify as "investments" is not quite 2,500 millions. So even if we grant that everything is an investment which Mr. Roosevelt calls an investment, and forget it for the moment, we are still left with expenditures, which even he calls expenditures, of nearly 7,000 million dollars. It is clear from his own figures that the deficit is by no means due wholly to investments, and it is clear also that if we stopped using this "instrumentality" entirely, we should still be spending at a level of seven billions a year.

As a matter of fact, however, one has only to look at the items in the investments to see that most of them are as firmly entrenched politically as the salaries of the Senators or the interest on the public debt. Three quarters of these investments consist of Federal public works, roads, the C. C. C., and the new construction by the W. P. A., which the President values at one-third of the whole cost of W. P. A. New "investments" which are due to the needs of the unemployed and to local demands for public works may, and no doubt do, produce desirable products. But since it is politically impossible to reduce them by a free choice, it is a strain on the language to call them investments. They are, as the President made plain when he was challenging Congress to reduce them, compulsory political contributions.

Basic Problem Is To Establish Brakes. It is necessary to call a spade a spade in things of this sort. For the fundamental question in this budget or any other budget is the amount of irreducible expenditure, and the fact which we have to contend with is that the apparently irreducible level of Federal expenditure is now nearer 9 billions than it is to the 4 billions of the post-war era.

For my own part I do not see how the level can, even if it were desirable, be substantially reduced. Thus we are left with two great questions. One of these the President discussed. The other he did not mention.

The first is how to increase the national income to a point where such a level of expenditure can be effectively sustained. The President says it can be sustained if the national income is increased from 60 billions to 80 billions. But the second question is no less important, and that is how to keep the level of expenditure from rising still higher. For then we should need still larger national income to sustain it.

It is the failure to deal with this second question which should really cause anxiety. For the fact is that the political conditions which make real retrenchment impossible operate inexorably to increase expenditures. The whole system of pensions and subsidies is not only self-perpetuating, as the President admits, but self-aggravating, as in his heart he knows quite well. Thus the Republicans who demonstrated for retrenchment will almost certainly be supporting increased expenditures, and the Democrats will not be willing to let themselves be outbid.

The basic problem, therefore, is to establish political brakes to check the political pressure for more and more expenditure. And as every one knows quite well, the only brake that has a chance of holding is to substitute direct taxation of the mass of the voters for the present system of indirect and invisible taxation.

Raising Real Income Is No Simple Task. But even if the level of expenditure can be kept from rising, there still remains the problem of increasing the national income by at least one-third. This is not so easy as the President suggests. I wonder whether he has distinguished in his own mind between a real increase of income based on what would be an immense increase in production, and, on the other hand, a rise in prices which would increase the dollar value of the income without making the nation any richer. A real increase of the national income would mean not only putting more people to work on saleable products but it would mean working harder and longer. Perhaps the President will yet come to see this. There are even hints of it in his message. But he is still committed politically to the old New Deal theory that the hours of work should be reduced and the hourly rates of pay increased. And on this theory the real national income will not soon be raised to the amount he desires.

What can be done, if we have a boom, is to push up prices faster than production, and so give the appearance of being much richer than in fact we are. We might then enjoy again for a time the illusions of the late Coolidge era. And this is, what is meant by saying that it is fairly easy to increase the national income by one-third.

Roosevelt Talk Links Religion With Democracy

Message Has Quickened
Hearts of American People, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The broad principles of President Roosevelt's message to congress, insofar as they relate to freedom of religion as a foundation stone of democracy, are still being discussed here. For the truth is no message in recent history has focused more pointedly the fundamentals of democracy in direct relationship to the policy of national defense.

When the president said "religion, democracy and international good faith" require a united defense, it will be recalled that he significantly declared "to save one, we must make up our minds to save all" because they are "all the same fight."

Never before has a president linked religion to democracy as a thing worth fighting for with our national power, and that is why the subject is still uppermost in conversation and comment here, notwithstanding the fact that a week has gone by since the message was actually delivered.

The spiritual note in public affairs, to be sure, has been rising perceptibly of late, so the president's emphasis is opportune, but it is also a fact that the totalitarian states like Russia, Germany and Italy have been doing to undermine religious practices and religious worship has created in America a deep-seated feeling of concern lest the indifference toward God which motivates fascism and communism spread to America.

Basic Point

The basic point is what the defiance of religious tenets has done to the Russian and German and Italian governments in raising the banner of physical force as the supreme purpose of the state itself. America, of course, is not going to war on such abstract questions, but America is being asked nevertheless by the president to understand the forces which have bred such barbaric policies of anti-religion abroad.

Few people here would deny that the disintegration of a democracy can be begun by defiance of religion, for it is well understood that, when fair play and individual liberty, which are so interwoven with democratic institutions, are broken down, irreligion sets in.

It is nevertheless novel to find public policy being shaped by considerations as broad as these, and the consensus here is that Mr. Roosevelt has quickened the heart of the American people with his restatement of the democratic faith.

An Inspiration

There is something more important, however, than mere restatement of democratic doctrine as an integral part of national defense purposes for the benefit of foreign peoples or our own. It is the fact that attention begins to be placed on religion as an inspiration in public life itself. Clearly, if religion is the source of democracy in an international picture, such as we are witnessing today, it is even more so when the domestic picture is viewed.

Those words, "social responsibility," which have been used again and again in public addresses to denote the scope of social and economic legislation, take on a new meaning nowadays when the president himself speaks of religious feeling as a central part of our national life. Out of religious thinking, irrespective of creed or race or class, often comes the motivation of good government. Often, on the other hand, in the compromises of party politics or in the individual ambitions of persons who want to be elected or who want to be re-elected, the tenets of religious faith are cast aside or at least neglected, and the principles of common honesty and unselfishness, which are basic in the Christian faith, are ignored. Again and again, some political leaders console themselves with the notion that politics is a kind of game in which the moral code can be different from that which is supposed to prevail outside of public life. It is here that a return to religion is most needed, and there are signs that such a revival, quietly and unostentatiously, is beginning here as it is in Great Britain.

Application at Home

What the president said may have referred to the broad international aspects of democracy's fight for self-preservation, but it also applies with equal force to the need for changing the personal lives of persons in positions of responsibility in government and business; in fact, throughout those key institutions which from day to day make democracy function.

Certainly, with compulsion the underlying force of fascism and communism, volition becomes the only parallel force in democracy, and, to induce the right sort of voluntary action for the common good, the place that religion occupies will tend to become more and more vital in a democracy like ours. That's why the president's message will remain a topic of conversation hereabouts for months, if not years to come.

City Police Plan For Public Safety Meeting on Jan. 25

Colored Motion Picture
On Bicycle Riding to Be Feature

Arrangements are being made by the city police department, under the supervision of Chief George T. Prim and Sergeant Carl Radtke, head of the traffic squad, for a public safety meeting at the Morgan school auditorium Wednesday evening, Jan. 25.

One of the features of the meeting will be the showing of the colored bicycle safety motion picture, "Handle Bar Hazards," filmed by R. L. Swanson, instructor at the Wilson Junior High school. While the motion picture has been shown to various groups in the city, this will be the first public showing of the film.

The program also will include several safety talks by members of the state highway department safety division. The public safety meeting will be one of the first steps in the 1939 safety program of the city police department which is attempting to duplicate its last year's record of having no traffic fatality in the city.

The colored motion picture was made in Appleton and shows the bicycle safety bureau, which was created last year, in action. The picture also demonstrates safe riding habits and the tragic results that may occur when they are not observed.

FDRE ANSWERS FDR

Said Mr. Roosevelt to congress, face to face with the public conviction that needless spending must stop, "If you want a balanced budget you'll have to cut government costs, and just where will you cut them?"

The question is the expected one. It has the advantage of making certain minorities cling more desperately to the President's entourage. But it would be a perfectly honest affair, surely, to let Mr. Roosevelt answer himself.

There was a certain summer and fall in which Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate for the presidency. He then sought millions of votes and for that purpose made certain declarations in order to obtain the confidence of the American people.

So, let us listen to Mr. Roosevelt answer Mr. Roosevelt:

"It is impossible to expect any important economies from the Hoover administration which is committed to the idea that we ought to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible of control necessarily involves the creation of the unprecedented bureaucracy that has assembled in Washington in the past four years. It is engaged with the creation of the innumerable boards and commissions which have grown up as excrescences on the regular system, and it involves an increase of federal expenditures at the most reckless and extravagant pace that I have ever been able to discover in the statistical record of any peacetime government anywhere, anytime."

Of course in speaking about the Hoover administration Mr. Roosevelt was damning out a national budget that in fact was about five billion dollars less than the one he has just submitted to congress, so his burning and gouging words of that campaign must be multiplied in strength to really fit the situation he has himself created.

These declarations of Mr. Roosevelt were not mere outbursts. They were the deliberately phrased sentences of a man in the fullness of mental vigor and after a lifetime of public experience but to finish them all off with a nice piece of apple pie and cheese for dessert try this one:

"I am as certain as any mortal man can be of anything in the future that from the moment we set our hands openly and frankly and courageously to this problem we shall have reached the end of our long, hard, downward road and shall have started on the upward trail. Join me and let's go."

So what we needed was economy and a lack of centralization! And what we were promised was economy and a lack of centralization. And what have we received, that now makes our financial condition increasingly hazardous every day? We received the centralization of 300,000 additional federal employees to whom the people pay approximately a billion dollars a year. And we received a national debt that Mr. Roosevelt places at a little under 45 billions before he will be out of office, and that requires, even at reduced rates, an interest item in the budget that has increased from 599 millions in 1932 to 1052 millions for Mr. Roosevelt's last year in office.

Such is the record Mr. Roosevelt has himself written. Such is the "open and frank and courageous" manner in which he promised to handle the finances.

Cutting off Mr. Farley's cheering section, the great Roosevelt choir, would save a billion dollars a year.

But what is a mere billion to the greatest spender of the ages?

A SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

The appointment of Felix Frankfurter to the supreme court of the United States will assuredly be given due approval by the senate although for the sake of the required caution in running a great government an investigation is in order lest the Kluxer Black blunder of disgraceful proportions be repeated.

We think altogether too much political use is made of certain alleged "liberal tendencies" upon the judiciary not that the proposition is entirely empty of materiality but that it is overdone.

Some men of intensely reactionary disposition it is true have occasionally been given places upon very high courts in this country. We believe that they have sometimes given the constitution a meaning never intended and impossible of tracing to its language.

But in overwhelming proportion the members of our high judiciary have been free of bias or partisanship. They have been acie, honest and forthright, and about 98 per cent of all their cases have nothing to do with politics anyway.

Mr. Frankfurter is recognized as a scholar, a deep and purposeful student, a reserved, careful and considerate man. The judiciary demands talents of this order but it also imperatively cries out for character, courage, selflessness, as indispensable prerequisites to high service.

Yet the President can appoint a dozen men like Frankfurter and another dozen like Reed to various judicial positions without entirely removing a certain persistent odor that hangs around the gentleman on the bench who would more appropriately appear on horseback wearing a robe and mask.

DOES IT LOOK LIKE A BLUFF?

Winston Churchill, in the current issue of Collier's argues with his usual pith and force that the power of the airplane as a weapon of war has been exaggerated nearly to the point of panic.

Mr. Churchill, it is best to remember, was too outspoken to become prime minister but has become known the world over as the premier British statesman, not only in point of deep and lucid thought but from the angle of empire interests as well, and thus is always entitled to close attention wherever his language is spoken or genuine democracy seeks to solve its vexatious problems.

Of course Mr. Churchill doesn't wipe aircraft out of essential needs of an army. It is the eye of the artillery. It is the spirit builder of the infantry. But it is not, Mr. Churchill insists, the winner of battles, much less of wars.

The British statesman then wades through the facts concerning the Spanish, Ethiopian and Chinese struggles. In Spain the Loyalists have been hopelessly crippled in the air, but they muddle along. Neither side in that conflict has been able to sink a single warship by aircraft. And this despite the fact that the Spanish fleets were but illly fitted with protection or equipment to ward off air attacks. Mr. Churchill observes:

"A ship that can stand up to the plunging fire of 15 and 16 inch guns, hurling projectiles of over a ton should not be seriously disconcerted by the dropping of bombs weighing half or a quarter of a ton and striking by mere force of gravity."

Time after time on all these battlefronts airplanes have signally failed in destroying bridges, troop trains or trench fortifications, and all because of the inability to bomb with accuracy from a vehicle traveling at high speed. Again Mr. Churchill observes from stacks of reports upon these conflicts:

"The concentrated bombardment of two or three batteries of field cannon would be far worse to bear in the trenches than that of a hundred airplanes."

America must not become jittery over the alleged menace of totalitarian superiority in the air. No doubt many men in political life are genuine in their commendations concerning the enormous increase of our air forces. But a feeling or state of panic with which the Germans were able to cover Europe should never be permitted to form here.

THE CHAINS GET A BREAK

The Patman bill, designed somewhat to tax chain stores out of existence, suffered a heavy reverse when the McKesson & Robbins Company, sponsor of the measure, was found to be paying Mr. Patman from $100 to $300 a night for his talks and putting high pressure upon obtaining him a sufficient number of talking engagements to yield something more than cigarette and eau de cologne money.

Some of the leading members of congress who had looked upon the Patman measure with favor now publicly declare they cannot afford to have anything to do with it. They directly state that the exposure in the McKesson-Robbins affair is responsible for their actions and that Mr. Patman's highly unethical conduct in accepting large sums of money to take the public platform while he was posing as a purist and a patriot, has given the bill a black eye.

Not only is this true in congress but anti-chain store legislation received a substantial setback in public estimation when the people came to view the way the machinery had been worked behind their backs.

It behooves the chains to watch their steps pretty carefully. They might offset this advantage by unethical conduct of their own.

A CROWN FOR ALL

Miss Grace Moore, the American songbird, who opened up a devastating question for the English people when she curtsied to the Duchess of Windsor, gave a new slant to this critical problem and touched it up a little with commercialism by saying that the Duchess "is a great lover of music" and then slammed some of the snooty female critics with this more than mouthful: "The Duchess gave happiness to one man which is more than most women do and she deserved a curtsy for that alone."

We prefer to adopt the late Huey Long's attitude toward royalty. Huey was for making "every man a king." The proper sort of consideration for the feminine population suggests the slogan, "Every woman a queen" and that can be accomplished, so it seems from this international argument, by all of us, and the men most particularly, learning to curtsy to the women.

Give us two or three generations of this nimble movement and perhaps lumbago will disappear among our people.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—Tay Garnett, movie director, was in town the other day and remarked that Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia had a hand in directing a scene or two of Garnett's last picture, "Trade Winds."

The picture was produced by Walter Wanger, who served under Mayor LaGuardia during the World war. He had never visited a studio until on a Hollywood visit a few months ago he called on Wanger, who let him take over the director's megaphone for a few minutes. (I understand they threw away the film, but I wouldn't want that to get out, as it might make the mayor unhappy.)

Garnett sailed around the world to get the background film for "Trade Winds," the picture itself was filmed in Hollywood, the background scenes being thrown on a screen before which the actors appeared.

John D. Rockefeller, the night club proprietor (viz. his Rainbow Room and Rainbow Grill), is also a devout churchman which accounts probably for the fact that the Rainbow Room is virtually the only swank night club in town that is closed on Sundays. The Rainbow Grill is in operation seven days a week, but closes early Sundays and has no dancing on that day.

Milt Herth, swing organist, remarked recently in an interview that he was a coin collector. A few days later he received a letter from a convict offering to sell him his collection of coins. "You will find it," he wrote, "the world's finest collection of counterfeiters."

Inspired by the success of the Lima conference and the spirit of friendship between the Americas which it engendered, Consul General Jaime Velez Perez of Columbia is trying to bring Colombia and the United States closer together via the dance. The Consul-General, pointing out that the rumba has given Americans a new cordiality toward Cubans, personally is introducing Colombia's dance, the Pasillo, to New Yorkers. He appears several evenings a week at the Havana-Madrid, a night spot favored by rumba dancers, demonstrating the Pasillo with the co-operation of Nano Rodrigo, the orchestra leader, who also is a Colombian.

Abe Lyman, the orchestra leader, has been waving a baton for 20 years, during which time his organization—band and office staff—has grown from six to 60. Violent and temperamental during rehearsals, he has never in the entire 20 years fired a man. He is a great fellow to boost talent when he comes across it. Several years ago he came across Eleanor Powell, then a struggling tap dancer who was taking small jobs and glad to get them. He told her she was worth $750 a week, and that she was a fool not to demand that much. Time went on, and Lyman, needing a dancer for a week's engagement, called upon Miss Powell. When she demanded $750 he screamed. Finally he paid, but ignored her during most of the engagement. Her mother at last went to Lyman and said, "You've got to stop ignoring Eleanor. It upsets her so that she can't dance."

Lyman glared. "What does she expect?" he snapped. "$750 a week and romance, too?"

Tin Pan Alley has concocted a plan that ought to cheer the nation's amateur songwriters. The Song Hit Guild at 1619 Broadway is putting out a little folio containing five sets of lyrics by successful lyric writers and five melodies, without words, by prominent composers. The idea is for ambitious amateur composers to write tunes for one of the sets of lyrics or lyrics for one of the tunes. Sometime during the spring the contestants' efforts will be judged by Paul Whiteman, Guy Lombardo, Ray Kayer and Bing Crosby. The best songs will be published and plugged, which is all an amateur songwriter wants, anyway. He will share royalties—when and if—jointly with the other half of the songwriting team.

I wouldn't mention this except that two out of every three persons apparently have secret yens to write songs. Some submit them to me and suggest that if I will only peddle their masterpieces they will be glad to split the proceeds with me. For that reason I was careful to insert the Hit Guild's street address above. If those guys are begging for a headache, it's their business.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Jan. 9, 1929

The Question Mark, army monoplane, set a record-shattering mark of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds, in an endurance flight which covered 12,000 miles. Army officers said the flight proved the practicability of refueling in the air and was a grueling test for the motors which weakened only after nearly a week of continuous flying.

Mrs. H. C. Schultz had been elected president of the Theda Clark Hospital Alumni association during a meeting at the home of Miss Bernice Landring at Menasha. Others elected were Mrs. E. C. Arneemann, vice president; Miss Verna Moore, secretary; Mrs. M. N. Pittz, treasurer; Miss Lucille Lenz, Miss Hilda Thiel, Miss Esther Stevenson and Mrs. Edward Rhoades of Oshkosh, directors.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Jan. 14, 1914

Stockholders of the Citizens National bank at a meeting the previous evening decided to construct a new building that year. Officers elected were L. M. Olmstead, president; Joseph Rossmel, vice president; John J. Sherman, cashier; William J. Konrad, Jr., assistant cashier. Directors include Olmstead, M. F. Bartau, Humphrey Pierce, J. E. Thoms, John Berg, Sherman Rossmel, John Hackworth, John L. Pingel, G. T. Moeskes, David Brettschneider.

The following directors were elected for the ensuing year of the First National bank at a meeting the previous evening: F. J. Sensenbrenner, J. H. Marston, F. J. Harwood, O. P. Schlatter, J. S. Reeve, P. R. Thom and Herman Erb. Officers named were Erb, president; Sensenbrenner, vice president; George H. Utz, cashier; L. O. Wissmann, assistant cashier, and A. O. Heck, auditor.

Al Langstaad was in Milwaukee attending a convention of electricians. Otto Wolter and Joseph J. Plank were there to attend the auto show.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

When they were little she never could sleep. Always her slumber was fitful, for she Must rise when they whimpered, and lovingly keep Their covers from slipping, their tiny hands free.

When they were older, she never could rest. Until the last youngster was safe in the fold. Their step on the porch, and her evening was blessed. Her heart had more happiness than it could hold.

Now that the children are grown and away. With times of their own, she cannot sleep at all. Their beds are too smooth at the end of the day. And silence too weary upon the dark hall. (Copyright, 1939)

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — One truly fundamental change in the relief situation as it comes up once more is that members of Congress now can look at the problem with a greater degree of objectivity, without the need of damning or defending Harry Hopkins.

The change may bring calmer thinking in the search for solutions, even though the actual facts of relief are as difficult to dissolve as ever.

Confidence in the Army
Now Hopkins is out of relief and in the cabinet. Replacing him is Colonel Francis C. Harrington, an Army engineer. So far as this correspondent's recollections goes, there is no branch of the government in which Congress places such trust as in the Army engineers. Probably President Roosevelt knew that too. Congress has voted scores of millions for flood control and most members have been content simply to know that the Army engineers had placed an okay on the expenditure.

As to relief, the problems of 1933 still remain. Actual figures vary, but the present 10,000,000 or more of unemployed is probably within two or three million of the 1932-33 peak. Costs of extending relief have advanced steadily, in part due to the greater exhaustion of the poor man's resources, and in part to the insistence of the administration that workers on relief were entitled to better than a dole income.

As Col. Harrington took over, WPA rolls were near an all time peak at above 3,000,000. While WPA workers were moving into private industry at the rate of 200,000 a month, others were displaced and coming on the rolls at the rate of 300,000 a month as Congress met.

Few, if any, Congressmen advocate outright termination of relief. But part and parcel of the expenditure has been the tax on industry, creating more private jobs. This has been one of the arguments in support of maintaining the costlier work relief in contrast with the half-as-costly direct relief. One group of administration and congressional advisors still argues for continued pump priming but others, noting the persisting high unemployment levels, now doubt that it works so well.

Seek Big Income Jump

More than ever a search is being made to incite an increase in the national income from the present $40,000,000,000 to something between $80,000,000,000 and $100,000,000,000 where it is considered certain the demand for help would be so great that only the utterly unemployable would remain on relief.

That is why, as the relief problem comes up for its ninth year, Congress is looking to other ways of meeting the situation. Already formal or informal attention has been given to such approaches as:

Tax reduction rewards to companies with employ profit sharing plans. Similar awards to companies scrapping old machines for new, with consequent stimulation of the heavy goods industries. Complete elimination of the corporate surplus profits tax. Reduction of upper bracket income taxes with a view to bestirring enterprises to undertake new ventures. Elimination of tax-exempt securities to block this "escape" for lazy or nervous capital.

But when Congress ends there will be a WPA—with money to spend.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

Editor Post-Crescent—All sound thinking, civic minded individuals will approve with enthusiasm the objectives of the Outagamie County Democratic Club in its effort to curb gambling in this community, as presented in an issue of your paper on January 6. All power to this Club! And may it receive the hearty support and cooperation of both individuals and organizations.

What has been said or done, however, will be only a momentary flash unless permanent foundations are laid by a very substantial number of citizens who are tremendously interested in good government. Getting a substitute for the initiative which should come from officials who are ever mindful of their duty is a difficult task.

Law enforcement as to slot machines in Outagamie county has, indeed, been a farce. Let us review a little history. The present district attorney and the present sheriff, after taking office two years ago, issued a statement containing among others, the following sentences:

Slot machines are definitely crooked and dishonest. There is no element of true gambling or chance in them. . . . We have not the right, nor the inclination to permit them to be operated. . . . Outagamie has always been a clean, law abiding county. It is our intention to keep it so.

It was a splendid declaration, and deserved applause. The Appleton Post-Crescent in an editorial on February 10, 1937, entitled "A Right Upset," commented on the statement, saying that it "approached pretty close to what one might call literature in dealing with the bandit slot machines." Remarks were paid, to quote further from the editorial, "because with well modeled words it states a situation and a duty for others occupying similar situations."

But what happened to the bandit slot machines? They continued to flourish. Subsequent to the magnificent statement Outagamie was probably never dirtier in its history. What happened to the fine declaration of official duty? It was meant for the sucker public—not the slot machine operators—and reached the waste basket before the ink was dry. Those who believed that the law would be enforced were miserably and hopelessly betrayed.

The communication to the Post-Crescent from the Outagamie County Democratic Club called attention to the duties of the sheriff. He cannot escape responsibility for knowing what is going on in his county.

But what are the duties of the district attorney, who was not mentioned in the communication? "Both public opinion and the courts" to quote briefly from the Opinions of the Attorney General, "have made it clear that it is the duty of the district attorney to investigate action upon his own knowledge as well as to prosecute." As a matter of fact the district attorney is the key man in law enforcement in his county. Of all the law enforcement officers he is certainly one who cannot lawfully escape responsibility because others are neglecting their duties.

To quote further from the Opinions of the Attorney General, "The fact that other officers whose duty it may also be to make the complaint do not do so is no excuse for the district attorney."

In reality, the issue in Outagamie county can be put in a few pointed words. Shall the duly elected officers who are charged with law enforcement control the birds of prey, or shall the birds of prey control them?

Shall law or culture be the symbol of Outagamie County? An Outagamie County Citizen.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

ON THE TABLE

It is most desirable, of course, that the daily diet should supply the greater portion of the vitamins required to prevent deficiency rearrangements or better the more liberal rations of vitamins required to maintain or build health and vigor. But it is difficult to arrange a practical dietary to day to fulfill this requirement, even when the training table is under the personal supervision and control of a competent dietitian or nutrition expert.

A famous football team in the 1938 playing season affords a good example. A physician who had examined the players suggested to the coach that it might be well to feed the men more vitamins. The coach dismissed the idea as not practical; he explained that the men were all on the rigid diet prescribed and carefully supervised by a dietitian. Nevertheless a survey of the actual daily intake of food by the men at the training table revealed that, according to the best present view of the optimal nutritional requirements, the football players were getting 20 per cent less vitamins than they should have.

Now if a university football team under the most capable dietetic supervision suffers from such a shortage, how much greater is the vitamin deficiency in the everyday diet of people who give the matter no particular thought but merely eat what they find on the bill of fare or what they like or what they believe is "nutritious," "easily digestible" or what the season or climate affords.

It is true that the greater part of the energy, the calories, in the average diet is from food which contains little or no vitamins. Less than one-third of the food consumed by the average American family is "protective" food, that is food containing all or nearly all of the vitamins and minerals that naturally occur in the food, grow in it. These facts are recognized by nutrition authorities, but not by the rank and file of physicians in everyday practice. There are still a good many physicians coasting along on principles which were accepted a decade or two ago but cannot withstand analysis to day. It is all very well to allude to the vitamin "fad" as a kind of passing hysteria and to blurt forth in some pretentious if humorous medical journal that a physician with a very large practice rarely sees a case in which he suspects any vitamin deficiency. But already the doctor who had the temerity to go on record with such a hasty, half-baked comment finds the medical literature filled with multitudes of cases in which doctors with just ordinary practices have diagnosed vitamin deficiencies and given their patients extraordinary help by restoring the necessary vitamins to the daily intake.

One of the best natural food sources of vitamin B complex (all of the factors or entities that occur with vitamin B) is plain wheat. Have you ever tried to buy and eat plain wheat? Still richer source of the B complex is wheat germ. Have you ever tried to buy and eat wheat germ? I mention these to give an idea of the difficulty any one must encounter in an attempt to get even an adequate maintenance ration of vitamins in the daily food.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Being very proud of her new hair brush and her own bottle of shampoo, this young lady delights in her semi-monthly shampoo.

Ironically, women always begin to take care of their hair and beauty just when they begin to lose their hair. Few have the foresight to preserve their hair and its natural beauty of passing years. But wise, modern mothers today, having neglected themselves, realize the importance of training their young daughters in sensible care of skin, hair and figures. A little vanity hammered into rebellious heads is a great asset toward life!

Good Home Shampoo
With excellent prepared shampoos selling for little money, and good hair brushes available at moderate prices, the home shampoo is greatly simplified, and young things may be easily trained to give their heads scientific and beautifying shampoos under the family shower.

Pre-shampoo brushing is most essential to loosen and remove cuticle from the scalp and dust from the hair, which washing alone will not thoroughly accomplish. And finger massage to stimulate the scalp does wonders in keeping hair lustrous and of the natural coloring. Blonde hair particularly is benefited by finger massage.

Teach your daughter to take pride in keeping her hair brush and comb immaculately clean. A good hair brush is a grand investment in beauty and will be a staunch friend for many years, so it deserves intelligent care!

Self Direction and Control Are Results of Experiences

BY ANGELO PATRI

There is a widespread notion that quiet children are good children; that children who obey every direction given them in the house are always good everywhere. That idea is the cause of many school problems, many neighborhood trouble-makers.

Richard is a very good boy at home. His mother has always been strict with him. Bedtime, rising hour, mealtime, neatness, order, obedience, regularity in all things have been impressed upon him. All this he accepts quietly at home. When he gets to school, and to church school, things are different.

He enters the church classroom with a blustering noise, kicks over a row of little chairs, laughs loudly, pushes a small girl off her chair and calls her "very baby." His manners are those of a rowdy, a child who never heard of good behavior. The teacher has no hesitation in pointing him out as "the bad boy in the school."

In school he is noisy, makes demands, books, any materials he uses. He drags his feet on the floor to annoy the teacher. He makes a parade of going to the wastebasket, interrupting the class and the teacher. He calls out loudly, out of turn and laughs like a boor at the annoyance he causes. His lessons are good and his behavior red-lined. Why?

There is too much goodness pressed upon him at home. His goodness is all negative good. He does not do those things that are forbidden him; he does those things he is commanded to do. He has no chance to do anything good or bad, under his own power. He is damned up. The energy he stores for personal growth through personal activity is never loosed at home. When he gets out he lets go, and because he has never been trained in self-discipline, following its natural course, self-direction and initiative, he goes wild. He is like a car on its way without a driver.

Children cannot learn to be good members of society until they learn self-direction and self-control. They cannot be good in the true sense of the term until they choose to be good instead of the other way. If they never have the chance to try themselves out, never have the chance to make mistakes and to profit by them, they cannot be good for anything when left to themselves. Self-direction and self-control cannot be imposed by discipline and authority. They are the result of personal experience, guided and interpreted by wise leaders.

Every experienced teacher knows what happens to the class that is held in hard discipline by a stern teacher. That class marches like wooden soldiers to the school door, but the moment they feel free of the teacher's power they break ranks with a yell that lifts the sky, race away in wild disorder, slapping, snatching caps, knocking books about, being as wildly free as their untamed muscles and nerves demand. The taut springs rebound.

Children need order, discipline, restraint and guidance. They need the full measure of authority that home and school can wield. At the same time they need, and must have, enough freedom to exercise their minds, their bodies, under self-direction and self-control. If they do not have this they crack up at release. Good children are active, and they make mistakes, but they do better under stress, and in emergency, than the children who are

Collect 800 On Double of One No Trump

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The answers to question 35 of the recent examination proved among the most surprising of any that I received. This question was:

Both sides vulnerable. You deal and hold:

♠ A Q J 10 9 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ A Q 10 9 5 3 2

What call do you make? The correct answer was that South should bid one diamond; that in choosing between a six and a five card suit, the longer should be bid first, regardless of rank. I expected a great many readers to open the bidding with one spade, but was not prepared for the following tabulation of answers:

Of 20,218 answers reaching me, 9,755 selected the correct one diamond bid.

4,433 "fell for" the major suit bid of one spade.

3,420 selected three diamonds for mysterious reasons of their own.

2,591 made the remarkable bid of three spades.

19 highly original contestants thought up about twelve other bids to meet the situation.

I stated, I was not surprised that many players would bid this hand with one spade, but it was disquieting to learn that opening three-bids were being so much abused and wasted. Even as the discontinued Culbertson two-way three-bid, this hand would not be suitable. In the first place, such bids never were recommended for out-and-out two-suiters, and in the second, three diamonds would be unacceptable because the diamond suit is not within one trick of being solid. According to the new requirements of the three-bid (as published in this column several months ago) a three-bid should be largely pre-emptive in nature. In major suits it should be based on a trump suit within one trick of solid, but not more than one-plus outside trick and no more than seven winners in the hand. In minor suits the same general specifications apply, but the bid suit must be absolutely solid. There is a definite need for such three-bids, and if hands like that in question 35 are put into this category, the entire purpose and meaning of an original three-bid become lost.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 No trump Double Pass Pass

East's action of leaving in the double is worthy of attention. Technically, the double of one no trump, like the double of any other one-bid, is for a take-out. But there is this great practical difference: The responder must be extremely cautious about leaving in the double of a suit bid, whereas he should sun and stretch to leave in the double of one no trump. At the latter denomination there is little chance that the declarer will run off a lone suit or that he will make several small trumps by ruffing the defenders' high cards. In this particular case the defenders collected 800 points by taking full advantage of the situation.

West opened the diamond king and, when East played low, shifted to the spade ten. Declarer won and, hoping to throw West back on lead, exited with the ace and another spade. He then sidestepped by playing the queen on the ace, and this permitted East to win the third round. The diamond return left West run off the entire suit and forced declarer to make three discards, which were two clubs and one heart. East meanwhile had signaled "high-low" in clubs so West followed orders. His club return at the tenth trick cost the defenders a trick, but this could not be avoided. A heart return would have been equally costly. Obviously, although declarer made his club king, he had to concede the heart queen.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Almost twenty years ago I planned this educational newspaper column. Then I spent 5 years as Research Psychologist with the Carnegie Institution and the National Research Council, plus 8 years of graduate work in Yale and Northwestern, in procuring a medical as well as a psychological background, to qualify me for writing these CASE RECORDS. They are authentic and scientific. As for their popularity, you be the jury.

CASE M-121: Myrtle, aged 35, has a 10-year-old daughter.

"I don't see why our editor runs your column at all," she recently wrote me.

"Your column is so filthy that I can't fit for decent people to read, and I am writing to tell him if he doesn't take it out of our newspaper, I'll cancel my subscription."

"All you think about, Dr. Crane, is filth, and the only people who read your column are those whose minds are in the gutter."

"You had a case about Myrtle W., last week who was jealous of her daughter, and I certainly think you are crazy from the way you diagnosed her case."

"I am never going to read any more of your articles and I am also having my neighbor write a letter to the editor to make him take your rotten column out of our newspaper. I certainly hope nobody remembers my name is Myrtle."

DIAGNOSIS:

This letter doesn't even ruffle my peace of mind, because I know this woman is simply incensed because the shoe happened to fit. She identified herself so firmly with the Myrtle W., whom I had described the preceding week, that she felt I was talking about her.

As I have told you readers in times past, my cases are drawn from my own extensive consulting practice, and I disguise my patients by using the fictitious names, such as Myrtle W.

Many readers will encounter their own problems described in this educational column through my analysis of somebody else with the identical difficulty.

Psychological problems are as similar as medical ailments. Two cases of appendicitis may be very much alike. This column would not render its present wide psychological service if readers could not profit from a diagnosis of problems just like their own.

No Bed Of Roses
An editor's job is no bed of roses, nor is that of your psychology columnist. We receive plenty of letters damning us both.

Some people are chronic writers who criticize anything if it will help start a debate. Others have had their toes stepped on in some fashion.

Undoubtedly I step on many toes quite unintentionally. But when I diagnose a case of selfishness or any other widespread ailment, I intend people to squirm and growl. My usefulness to your community would be very slight if these new concepts which I often introduce were passively received by every reader.

My progress as editor exerts no censorship of these articles which I write. If you don't like this column, then blame me. If you want this educational service taken out of your newspaper, write him to that effect.

The Purpose of Case Records
My purpose is not to make you laugh, as does your humor columnist. I seldom venture upon the subject of politics, unless it has a psychological aspect of wide interest.

Many previously taboo subjects are freely discussed in this column, for science has no false modesty; no mid-Victorian prudishness. One elderly editor, however, cancelled this column because I ran a case on self-sex practices. But the average reader's age is only 35. He is modern.

Many readers also bombard their editors with criticisms of this column because I mention the word sex, or discuss practical aspects of courtship and marriage, or offer my scientific rating scales for your mates.

Some quack psychologists also kick about this column because I expose their claims. Even some of my own profession protest in "sour grapes" fashion, because I happened to conceive such a column before they did, but it is very easy to see the hidden motives behind emotionalism such as Myrtle's.

Believes Wife's Dictatorial Powers Cause Marital Trouble

BY DOROTHY DIX

A man believes that what's the matter with marriage is the bossiness of wives; that if wives would make marriage more of a partnership and less of dictatorship in which they run the whole show, it would do a lot toward popularizing the holy state and stopping divorce.

DOROTHY DIX shall have.

"Who has the nice sunny room with the southern exposure in every home? The man who pays the freight? Not much. It is the baby's or Grandma's or Mother's—never Papa's. Who has all the closet room? Everybody else but Father. He hasn't even a book that he can call his own, or a hair brush that is his exclusive property. Who has to give up his easy-chair in the living room and move back to the dining room every time some callow youth comes to call on the girls? Poor old Dad.

"Is it the wife's family or the husband's family who have the run of the house and are perpetually camped in the guest chamber? You know the answer. Is it the wife's friends or the husband's friends who are invited to dinner and who drop in for bridge on an evening? You need but one guess at that. Does the husband have to eat the kind of food he likes, or the sort his wife was brought up on? Even a baby knows that if Mamma likes spinach it is spinach Papa is going to eat—no matter how much he loathes it.

"Why women should think that the homes that their husbands work and support, and that would not exist except for their husbands' labor, belong exclusively to them and that their husbands have no right to any say-so in them, is a mystery I have never been able to understand. But they do. Furthermore, they fight so fiercely for their rights that their husbands give in for peace's sake and wipe their feet on the doormat before they dare enter their own doors.

"Most of the married men I know are so cowed that they are afraid to invite an old friend to dinner, or ask any member of their families to pay them a visit. They wouldn't dream of doing anything so bold as pre-empting a back room for their adored collections. They just meekly permit their wives to throw what

"As things are now," this man says, "when a young couple get married and set up their house hold goods, the wife immediately assumes autocratic powers and thereafter the husband is nothing but a poor slave whose only right is to toil to support the home which she monopolizes.

"It is the wife who in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred picks out the house in which the family lives; superintends the decorations, which are done according to her taste and with no reference to the husband's; apportions the rooms, also without giving a thought to husband's comfort; and who decides on what church they shall attend, what clubs they shall belong to, what friends they they call John's 'junk' into the ash can.

"Now, little as women seem to realize it, the thing that oftenest leads a man into marriage is a desire for a home. He has dreamed of a place of peace and rest where he can strike his roots down and have that earthly anchorage that we all crave. Something that belongs to us. Something that we are a part of. Something permanent. And he thinks of this as a place where he can express himself and be himself; where he can put his own stamp on the place, and about him the people, the books, the things that he enjoys.

"It is a blighting disappointment to him when he finds out that his wife will let him have no part in the homemaking; that she won't even let him pick out his own little spot of earth, or even so much as choose the kind of chair he likes to sit in. If she has gone modernistic, he had just as well adapt his bones to angles, no matter how they yearn for curves.

"One of the constant grievances of wives is that their husbands are undomestic, that they take no interest in the home and that they leave every decision to them. The reason is that they have never been permitted to have any part in the building up of the home. It has never been theirs except technically. It has always really belonged to the wives and children. Their function in it has simply been that of the bill-payor.

"I think perhaps wives do not realize what a raw deal they give their husbands about the home, or else they would give them a better return for their money.

the elevator where David told her a reluctant goodnight.

Once in her room, Noel casually read over the telephone messages. She gaped with amazement at the second she read:

Mr. Collings wants you to call him.

What could he want at this late hour? Slowly picking up the receiver, she asked for the Lancaster Hotel and when she had been connected, she heard Allan's voice answering her sleeping.

"Did I wake you?" she asked remorsefully.

"I've been reading some drivel, waiting your call. The Star called Mother after dinner and wanted some information about the advertisement. Luckily I answered and told them we were acting for another party. I did everything but threaten their office with bombing if they didn't get off. So we'll have to be especially careful, since you two are determined to go on with this mad scheme. I've decided we'd better work it through the man I got this afternoon to look up the applicants."

"Better Than You Think?"

"You don't approve of our plans at all, do you, Allan?"

"What sane person would?" was Allan's retort. "But Mother's getting such a kick out of it, I suppose we must protest as 'useless'."

"It may turn out much better than you think," Noel lightened her voice with laughter.

"Did you have a good time at the dinner?" Allan asked, after a hesitant pause.

"It was nice."

"Just nice is hard on your David?" was there a satirical twist to the words? Noel could be sure.

"He's not my David yet." She strung out the answer, as much to herself as to Allan on the other end.

"Well," Was he saying "Good-night?" Noel waited.

"Noel Marchand! It sounds nice when I say it. Almost like a sister."

Noel grimaced. Sister indeed! "Wouldn't it be step-sister?" she managed. "I I were that lucky?"

And then she said quickly before he could answer her "Well, goodness, Allan! I'll see you tomorrow. We've those letters to answer and it won't be so easy."

"Goodnight, Noel," Allan replied. "Happy dreams." She whispered into the mouthpiece. "And do put some bolly around them."

"Or maybe mischief in the offing?" His laughter came out of the night air. "Goodbye, but tomorrow I'll see you."

Then he was gone.

Shifting her preferences, making selections, then changing their minds occupied Mrs. Marchand and Noel through the hours when they were together during the next two days. True to his word Allan had engaged an investigator to follow up the applications. He blithely ignored his mother's caustic comment when she met the agent.

"He looks as though he ought to be investigated himself."

Later she reluctantly admitted the wisdom of her son's action when Detective McCarthy reported on the letter that was

Hubert Likes Sociableness Of Americans

MARCEL HUBERT, who will appear on the Community Artist Series at Memorial chapel Friday evening, Jan. 20, likes America's people and their reaction to his cello recitals.

With his transcontinental tour of the United States completed, Hubert, a Frenchman by birth, is delighted over the friendliness with which he was greeted in all parts of the land.

"I traveled on many trains," he says, "and I talked to many other travelers, cowboys, business men, farmers, doctors. All of them made me feel at home—as though I were actually one of them."

"In France—or anywhere in Europe—this would not be so," he says. "The beauties of the instrument are fully appreciated by the concert-goers of this country. Of course most of the audiences were more familiar with the violin as a recital instrument than the cello, but everywhere I went I encountered cordial interest and appreciation. There is no doubt in my mind that the cello recital has taken its rightful place in American music life."

Hubert found the American public to be intensely "cello-conscious." "The beauties of the instrument are fully appreciated by the concert-goers of this country. Of course most of the audiences were more familiar with the violin as a recital instrument than the cello, but everywhere I went I encountered cordial interest and appreciation. There is no doubt in my mind that the cello recital has taken its rightful place in American music life."

Liskowitz Is Refused Supreme Court Review
Madison — The state supreme court refused Tuesday to review its decision of Nov. 9 affirming the conviction of Walter A. Liskowitz, former Waukesha county sheriff, who was sentenced to a six months prison term on a malfeasance charge.

The court dismissed Liskowitz's motion for rehearing without costs. The charge against the former sheriff was an outgrowth of a gambling investigation.

A motion by the Wisconsin Labor Relations Board for rehearing on a case involving discharge of Bernard Hamr, a foreman of Blum Brothers company, of Marshfield, was denied. The high court ruled in November that the discharge was legal.

Your Birthday

"CAPRICORN"
If January 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon; from 3 to 5 p. m., and from 9 to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 5 to 10 a. m.; from 7 to 8 p. m., and from 11 p. m. until midnight.

You are likely to find the average person inclined to be very friendly and sympathetic this day. Try not to go contrary to any reasonable request you might receive. Through granting favors much good is liable to come. Ambiguous phrases will be responsible for many misunderstandings so do not express yourself vaguely. Do nothing in jest that could be taken seriously, for trouble might come from it. You are apt to find most people seriously-minded, and apt to resent nonsensical remarks, regardless of how harmless they might be. Feelings of apprehension may be uncalculated. Try to placate anger, and be magnanimous if anyone has occasion to ask your forgiveness. Married and engaged couples should do nothing secretly, for time sees and hears all things, and discloses all.

If a woman and January 12 is your birthday, bear in mind that many people born on this date too often believe they are infallible, through your ability to be entertaining you may make many people happy, and gain numerous friends. You are thoughtful, ambitious and have sufficient pride to maintain your self-respect at all times. You seem likely to become one of Fortune's favorite children, and may often have occasion to wonder at your good luck. Through politics, art, selling, interior decorating, teaching, stenography, journalism or missionary work you may find a congenial means of making a good livelihood. You probably will lead the life of a contented and happily wedded woman.

The child born on January 12, generally has a restless urge to be doing something. An active mind and hands usually keep it busy and out of mischief. Long walks and outdoor sports are apt to be this youngster's favorite diversions. If a man and January 12 is your natal day, you are probably very practical, shrewd in your surmises, and farsighted in your planning. Through research or scientific work, writing, broadcasting, contracting, dentistry, law, medicine, or the stage you may win many laurels and financial independence.

Remember that the discharge was legal. Rehearing also was denied on the case of November ruling that T. A. Hooley and Ray F. Burmeister, trustees of the segregated trust fund of the defunct Citizens Bank of Monroe, could collect $2,672.66 from the estate of Mrs. Katie Hogan, of Clarno, on a judgment which was not executed until after her death.

Worthy Purpose Gives Greatest Meaning to Life, Students Told

Life reaches its greatest significance in the discovery of a worthwhile, altruistic objective. Dr. Thomas Kepler, professor of Bible and religion, told Lawrence students in convocation yesterday morning.

"It is a personal problem, this attempt to understand life," Dr. Kepler said. "We will find its greatest significance and meaning in something great and worthwhile enough to which we can devote our lives. A person may find something large and significant to do, but it must have an altruistic note and it must help humanity."

Speaking on "In Quest of Life's Meaning," he suggested the following by John Erskine as being particularly meaningful: "Often times when we try to interpret life's meaning, there is something we find in all of us that is called the divine, and it is this which makes our lives worthwhile."

Girl Gets Diamond For Refusing 'Dates'

Rushville, Ind.—(AP)—Juanita Southland has a new diamond ring—and it's not an engagement ring. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Southland of near Rushville, promised it to her if she wouldn't have "dates" before she was 18. She obeyed them. They gave her the ring on her eighteenth birthday.

Steenis Elected Head of County Sportsmen's Club

John Branchford, Michael King, Len Zehren Are Officers

Wilbur Steenis was elected president of the Outagamie Conservation club at its annual meeting last night at the county courthouse. He replaces A. J. Spoerl.

John Branchford was chosen vice president; Michael King was re-elected secretary and Len Zehren was re-elected treasurer. Members named to the board of directors for the year are George Spoerl, Joseph Drexler, Phalen VanRyzin, Norman Weber, Robert Krause, Fred Rehfeldt and Robert Kierulff.

A report of the bird feeding committee last night revealed that the club has between 140 and 150 feeders out in this area. Six or eight men are delegated each weekend to make the rounds and replenish the food stock in the feeders.

The sale of confiscated game by wardens was discussed last night. Emil Kramer, conservation warden, explained the game was sold by wardens to get something for it rather than let it spoil. The money is turned over to the conservation department.

Several members of the club and the game warden will attend a public hearing on Lake Winnebago ice fishing at 7:30 Tuesday evening at the Fond du Lac armory. Fishermen are objecting to the closing of the season on Jan. 15.

It Is Said--

That the credit for seeing the first robin of the year is claimed by Mrs. Lawrence Mislinski, Grignon street, Kaukauna, who spied one of the red breasted birds last week. Unseasonal spring weather may have been responsible for the early return of the bird, and then again maybe it was one of those birds that just don't believe in going south for the winter.

That River drive residents are backing the culprit who stole 24 lights off their community Christmas tree as the "meanest man" for 1938. "The same thing happened last year and the people in that vicinity are getting 'fed up' because they foot the bill for the Yule project. Next year the group will have a larger tree which will require more lights but they're not so keen on buying more bulbs if the yearly raids are to continue.

That Elmer O'Keefe, engineer's assistant in city hall, got a surprise when he came to work this morning and found his T-square and other desk equipment tied in black and green yarn each with a neat little bow. The practical jokers in city hall did the job after Elmer gave his desk its January cleaning yesterday.

That despite the extensive remodeling at Morgan school, at least one vestige of the old high school remains. A tin box has hung near the main entrance vestibule for many years and it is still there, bearing the suggestion to "Tell the Tailorman." Appleton High School student newspaper.

YOUNGSTER IN CHRISTMAS STORE

"Playing store" which for most children consists of passing imaginary sugar, milk and other foods over an imaginary counter, is a much more realistic experience for Peter Saecker, 31 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Saecker, 604 W. Fifth street, since Santa Claus left a completely equipped grocery store at his house on Christmas morning. Peter is shown answering the telephone for a "rush order" in his little store which carries a full line of "Peter Brand" canned goods and staples, labels for which were especially designed for the small store keeper. Peter awaits his customers behind a 36-inch counter, rings up sales on a miniature cash register, keeps perishable foods in a small refrigerator, fills orders over a tiny telephone, and guards against too frequent raids on the candy show case by keeping a lock on it. ## Loss of $5,000 Is Caused When Stove Explodes in Store

Clintonville — A kerosene stove explosion in the basement of the Bohr Harness shop caused fire damage estimated at $5,000 in the heart of Clintonville's business district about 9:30 this morning.

Flames badly damaged the interior of the building, owned by Anton G. Bohr, S. Main street, burning the stock of the Top Dress shop housed in the building, furniture in the Bohr flat on the second floor, and caused smoke damage in surrounding buildings. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The Clintonville Fire department battled the blaze for two hours this morning before bringing it under control. The walls and roof of the building remain but the interior was charred by flames and the stock was water-soaked.

The explosion occurred after James Bohr, a son of the owner, lighted a kerosene stove to heat some wax. He left the building on grand and returned to find it in flames. The blaze quickly spread to harness oil in the basement and then jumped to the ground floor and second floor through the walls.

A passer-by turned in the alarm. Firemen were watching the building for live coals this afternoon.

A 3-way race for the aldermanic job in the Fifth ward developed today when Henry R. Falk, 215 W. Commercial street, took out nomination papers. He will oppose Alderman J. J. Franke, who is circulating papers and Charles H. Bauernfeind, 903 N. Superior street.

Hopkins Stresses Close Relations With U. S. Industry

of me to say I think I can do well at the job," he said.

"I realize if I did tell you that, it probably would carry no conviction in your mind."

Hopkins told how as works progress administrator he had bought large quantities of goods from business men and had been intimately concerned with practical business problems.

Before the hearing started, Hopkins conversed amiably with Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who approval of Hopkins' nomination earlier this week.

It was Vandenberg who asked about Hopkins registering as a Socialist in 1914. Hopkins replied that if he did it was an expression of "the idealism of a young man."

The nominee added that in that year he was anxious to help keep this country out of war and wanted a "decent administration in New York city."

In response to another question, Hopkins conceded he was quoted correctly in substance as saying he would be opposed to any proposal Vandenberg might make.

Hopkins added that the remark was a "political aside" and not a reflection of any official attitude he would have as commerce secretary.

Scores Murphy
The house heard a bitter attack today by Representative Hoffman (R-Mich.) on the labor policies and political background of Frank Murphy, former Michigan governor or nominated recently as attorney general.

"The record shows that Frank Murphy failed to perform his duty as governor of the state, that he betrayed his people, that he left many of them to the mercy of the armed invaders," Hoffman said in a speech from the floor.

Murphy's nomination to head the justice department already has been approved by a senate judiciary subcommittee.

With the senate in adjournment until tomorrow, three of its subcommittees were at work today on President Roosevelt's nominations to high offices.

One approved former Senator James P. Pope of Idaho for membership on the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The committee instructed Senator Thomas (D-Okla.), acting as chairman in the absence of Senator Smith (D-S. C.), to ask the senate to confirm the nomination tomorrow.

Ordinarily, unless unanimous consent is obtained, nominations must lie on the table one day after committee approval.

Fight Possible
Senator Willey (R-Wis.), committee member who questioned the speed with which the committee approved the nomination, said today's action did not mean that the right of President Roosevelt to appoint Pope would not be questioned on the floor.

Sensor Bridges (R-N. H.), not a member of the agriculture committee, already has questioned in senate debate, the action of the president.

Defers Sentences Of Six Youths in Burglary Series

Young Men, 18 to 20 Years of Age, Plead Guilty to Charges

Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning deferred sentencing until 9 o'clock Monday morning six Appleton youths, 18 to 20 years of age, after they pleaded guilty of larceny and of entering in the nighttime with intent to commit larceny.

The youths admitted entering the Tri-City Motors garage and taking cash and on one occasion two radios. One youth, 18, and apparently the ringleader, admitted entering the garage each of the five times it was burglarized. Another of the gang admitted entering the garage on three of the occasions.

Two of the youths burglarized the garage on Sept. 4 and took $10 in cash. Three of them entered the garage on Sept. 10 and took $164. On Nov. 20 four of the youths entered the garage and took $27.48. A trio again entered the building and carried off two radios valued at $102 on Nov. 30. The last time the garage was entered, Dec. 30, only 40 cents was taken by two of the youths.

Five of the defendants waived preliminary examination yesterday afternoon while a sixth waived preliminary examination this morning. They were remanded to the county jail until sentence is imposed.

The arrests were made by Detective Sergeant John Duval and Patrolman Joseph Brouillard of the city police department.

dent in filing a vacancy on the board created by Mr. Roosevelt's removal of Arthur E. Morgan, chairman, Morgan is contesting his removal in the courts.

The senate foreign relations committee approved meanwhile the nominations of Spruille Braden of New York to be ambassador to Colombia and of Frank P. Corrigan of Ohio, now minister to Panama, to be ambassador to Venezuela.

The committee also approved the recess appointment of John C. Wiley of Indiana, former consul general at Vienna, to be minister to Latvia and Estonia.

Hits at Frankfurter
Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, who described herself as an author of anti-communist books, told a third subcommittee considering the nomination of Felix Frankfurter to the supreme court that she could prove that President and Mrs. Roosevelt were "dangerous radicals."

Mrs. Dilling said Frankfurter, a Harvard law professor, is an associate of "red revolutionaries."

Senator Neely (D-W. Va.) asked her about Dr. Glenn Frank, active in the Republican party.

"He's a very dangerous man," the woman replied.

Similarly, the witness said Justice Brandeis of the supreme court was a radical.

The witness said she also classed as radicals Senators Shipstead (F.-Minn.), Borah (R-Idaho), Norris (D-Neb.), Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.), Frazier (R-N.D.) and Wheeler (D-Mont.).

Republican Attacks
Hoffman's speech in the house against Murphy opened the third day of attacks by Republican house members on the Roosevelt administration.

The house, meeting an hour early, will take up the $725,000,000 work relief bill tomorrow, leaders announced.

Hoffman told the house "three grand divisions" of "shock troops" went to Michigan last fall in an unsuccessful attempt to elect Murphy.

First, he said, was an "army" carrying federal funds for state aid; second, "another grand division consisting of the sitdown strikers, the communists, under leadership of Earl Browder and his subordinates, and third, a group led by the commander-in-chief of the federal government, the president of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose subordinate commanders were playing politics with relief funds."

Meanwhile, administration forces, openly doubtful of victory, endeavored to restore to the relief bill $150,000,000 lopped off by a rebellious house subcommittee.

Warmer Thursday, Weatherman Says

Sun Pours Down on City But Temperatures Are Brisk

Comforting sunshine spread itself over Appleton and vicinity today, but nobody was complaining of the heat and it was mighty brisk in the shade.

A surge of cold weather broke up the mild wave, sending the thermometer down to 16 above in the city at 8 o'clock this morning and below zero in many other parts of the midwest.

The sun, blue skies, and scarcity of snow on streets and sidewalks gave the city a spring appearance, but the mercury wasn't in a spring mood and moved up only to 22 degrees by 1 o'clock this afternoon. For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 34, recorded at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Cold weather slipped across the border from Canada today and broke temperatures below zero in Minnesota and North Dakota, according to the Associated Press.

The mercury in northern Minnesota bobbed from near zero to 18 below in Bemidji. In Devils Lake, N. D., it hit 15 below.

Northern State Roads Are in Icy Condition

The recent rains have caused many of the highways in the northern part of the state to become slippery due to ice, according to a report of the state highway commission received by Arthur Krueger, county highway commissioner. If temperatures continue to remain at freezing point, driving conditions will be improved considerably, the report states. In the southern part of the state highways are in good condition.

The following detours are in effect: Highway 13, Marengo-Ashland road, in Ashland county; Highway 112, Ashland Junction-Barksdale road, Bayfield county; Highway 16, Rio-Portage road, Columbia county; Highway 151, Platteville-Dickeyville road, Grant county; Highway 11, Shullsburg-Hazel Green road, Lafayette county; Highway 64, Merrill-Antigo road, Lincoln county; Highway 20, Racine-Rochester road, Racine county; Highway 53, Galesville-Holmen road, Trempealeau county; Highway 54, Port Edwards-Dexterville road, Wood county.

DISTRICT AGENTS CUP

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—When Julius P. Heil sat down in the governor's chair for the first time one morning last week to begin his duties as chief executive, he found that some thoughtful aide had placed on a little rack on his expansive mahogany desk a set of brand new pencils sharpened to a fine point.

By this time, it is safe to say, those pencils have been dulled considerably, as the new chief executive plunged into the multitude of fiscal problems which beset him as soon as the bustle and bustle of the inaugural ceremonies ended.

The governor's message, scheduled for delivery to the legislature after the formal organization of the houses this afternoon, is his first official statement of policy, and the more important, and more difficult budget message which will be made public about a month later.

While those messages may be expected to touch on many state problems, one of them which has thus far escaped general mention is the problem of agriculture, curiously enough, since the farm vote, as everyone agrees now, was responsible for the landslide election of the Republican administration.

The farm problem, unlike many of the others about which Heil is scratching his shining gray head now, is an especially difficult and unwelcome one, for there is little that he or anyone else can do about it, as far as veteran capital observers are concerned.

It is no secret that every political platform for years has coyly suggested promises which would give the farmer just about everything he wanted to make his pocketbook fat and his life easy and happy; yet last fall the bottom had nearly been reached in the crucial chess maneuver, while milk was selling at what farmers argued was below cost of production, together a pretty fair indication that Wisconsin husbandmen were far from prosperous.

In the face of that condition the LaFollette forces took the stump to boast about their reorganization of the state department of agriculture and markets, and the creation of the Wisconsin Agricultural authority. Unconvinced, the farmers voted them out of office and the Republicans, with little or no farm program offered, in their places.

STATE HELPLESS
It is a political fact that agriculture is a national rather than a state industry, a national rather than a state economic problem. Although the dairy industry might be classified as a Wisconsin industry, it is an economic fact that the market for Wisconsin dairy produce is national rather than state, with the result that state legislation will be ineffective.

So what remains for the new Republican administration to do in the way of a farm program? Republicans don't know.

It is significant that some of the Republican farm leaders are now talking about another reorganization of the state department of agriculture and markets. LaFollette and his cohorts didn't know what to do either when they were with support; they too reorganized the department of agriculture and markets. That it didn't have any effect whatever on the fundamental problems of Wisconsin farming was readily apparent; that the farmers knew it they showed in understandable language last November 8.

COALITION LIVES

This department has suggested on several occasions lately that the state coalition committee, a close-knit group of Robert K. Henry supporters, will try to maintain its identity and solidify Wisconsin fusion sentiment during the next two years.

Now comes word that the original organizers of the movement will meet in Madison late this month for that purpose. Moreover, there is substance to the report that James Kerwin, who led the committee during the campaign, will be "bounced." At least such an attempt will be made. Slated for the chairmanship of the group, according to reliable reports, is Joseph Walsh of Polston, who served as secretary during the last year, after a career which included allegiance to LaFollette and state leadership of the Union party.

There no longer is any doubt that the group will put forward Robert K. Henry as a Coalition opponent of Senator Robert M. LaFollette in 1940. Incidentally, there are two schools of thought on Bob LaFollette's political prowess. One feels that he will be easier to beat than Brother Phil; others feel that it will be harder.

UNOPPOSED ROSENBERG

As was generally believed, Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberg of the state supreme court will be a candidate for another ten year term next spring without any opposition. The only name of a possible opponent suggested anywhere so far is F. Ryan Duffy, but he appears to prefer to wait for a possible U. S. judgeship.

Most surprising of all is the news that the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation, ebullient organization of Socialists and sundry left wingers, has found it "inadvisable" to oppose Rosenberg. At the last supreme court election, it will be recalled, TIFP interests ran Socialist Glenn Turner against Justice Joseph Martin, while the Progressives put forward Fred M. Wylie, or rather Fred M. Wylie put himself forward for the Progressives. Turner would like to make a fifth try, but his wife won't let him, he says.

RELIEF FACTS

Some of the Milwaukee newspapers within the last few days have published stories indicating that Governor Heil has found the state's relief problem not as serious as was at first believed, and inferring that the fact that the state can use the receipts of the estates and gift surtaxes during the length of those taxes was a new discovery.

Both intimations, competent students of state relief problems feel, are not exactly accurate.

It is a fact still that one of the first matters which the new legislature will have to face is a relief appropriation; secondly it has been known all along that the Progressive legislature last year appropriated $3,000,000 from the general fund for disbursement to localities for relief purposes by the emergency board, and in addition provided that the revenue from the estates and gift taxes, which run until 1941, may be used as the emergency board sees fit, which includes relief.

However, those taxes bring in only about $750,000 a year (and the receipts cannot be very accurately forecast), while the state will be called upon to spend about $3,000,000 a year.

BOARD OF CONTROL

One of the most curious manifestations of the sudden shift in political power in Wisconsin in the last few months is illustrated by the position of the state board of control, headed by the veteran John J. Hannan, old-time LaFollette chieftain.

Gov. LaFollette, who would have retired Hannan in 1931 had he dared, proposed in his reorganization program to shear the board of control of all its functions, and thus do away with its three members, by creating new departments to take over its duties and some others.

Three of them were proposed, mental hygiene, corrections, and social adjustment.

Two of the departments were created, and are now functioning, in theory. A board for the third was appointed by LaFollette, with instructions to choose a director so that the state correctional institutions could be transferred to it before January 1. For some reason—never explained—the third department was never finished, and now centers by the limitations of the organization law. There are reports that the board could not agree on a candidate for the $7,000 a year directorship; what is more likely is that the LaFollette people gave up hopes of preserving their reorganization ideas after the November election.

At any rate Colonel Hannan, Mrs. Katherine Sullivan of Kaukauna, and Col. Holden of Waupaca continue to serve with only a small slice of their duties remaining. All draw their salaries and are waiting for the next move.

HONOR COLONELS

It is interesting to note that one of the first documents to which Gov. Heil put his green-ink signature last week was one creating an honorary colonel on his military staff. Then another. They were Roy Brecke, former Republican state secretary, Hell campaign assistant, and inauguration major domo, and William C. Maas, the governor's personal secretary.

The honorary colonelcies are a peculiar part of the official life of a state capital executive. The colonels do nothing, except sit on a horse at national guard reviews with the governor at infrequent intervals, and they are required to buy their own uniforms. Yet the honor is eagerly sought. More important to a harassed executive anxious to reward those who helped him into his seat, it is a convenient and inexpensive form of patronage. The governor can appoint as many as he wants to, as the number of them in the state now should show.

The situation recalls an incident which has not yet been told, and which is amusing. Governor Schmedeman, in the closing days of his administration in 1933, appointed Julius P. Heil, then a Milwaukee business man inactive in politics, a colonel on his staff. The official appointment was not certified in the state auditor's office until after Schmedeman had left office in favor of LaFollette, however. So during the subsequent years Heil was listed on LaFollette's military staff, as the Wisconsin blue book will bear witness.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge — but others may! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing often can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Ask That Seed Samples For Tests Be Sent in

Farmers and dealers in seed are urged by the department of agriculture and markets to send in seed samples early for testing if they would have the tests completed in time to offer the seed for sale, according to a bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

Every precaution should be taken to send in a good, representative sample of the lot from which the seed was taken, the department cautions. Otherwise a test may have no value. Samples of seed may be left at the county agent's office or sent direct to A. L. Stone, State Seed Laboratory, Agronomy Building, Madison.

Any seed which is to be sold or offered for sale will be tested for a fee of 25 cents. Seed not to be offered for sale will be tested free. It is unlawful to sell untested and unlabeled seed.

Announce Judges for Dairy Sales Contest

Judges were announced today for the statewide dairy advertising contest sponsored by the department of agriculture and markets to encourage suggestions which would induce shoppers to ask for Wisconsin dairy products. Winners of 44 awards will be selected by William A. Summer, professor of agricultural journalism, University of Wisconsin; Carl A. Zielke, manager of the Wisconsin Press association; and William F. Groves, Lodi, vice chairman of the board of agriculture and markets.

The contest closes Jan. 31 and prizes will be given for the best

Liming, Fertilizing, Increased Alfalfa Acreages to Get More Attention Under AAA Program

The Wisconsin Agricultural Conservation program during 1939 will be geared closely to farm practices that will produce feed for livestock, according to a bulletin received from the state department of agriculture by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

Liming, fertilizing, and increased alfalfa acreages are the things to which special attention will be given according to Harry Wells, of the Wisconsin Conservation committee, and Warren Clark, of the state agricultural extension service. Such practices, it is said, will make Wisconsin farms better able to produce enough feed for their livestock.

Each of the program is the plan to help prevent a repetition of the bitter experience of the drought years when many Wisconsin farmers went deeply into debt for the purchase of roughages to keep their cattle alive.

Payments are to be made under the agricultural conservation act for establishing more crops, like alfalfa, which may be used to build up nitrogen and organic matter in the soil and which form a sod blanket to resist erosion.

Too Much Corn
While recognizing that these soil conserving crops are badly needed in any long-time farm rotation.

Barley Conference Is Planned at Chilton

Chilton — All steps in barley growing, from seed bin to market, will be considered by Calumet county growers when they hold a barley conference at the city hall in Chilton Wednesday, Jan. 18. Extension workers from the state college of agriculture will confer with the growers. Among those who will attend are George M. Briggs, agronomist, and R. E. Vaughan and J. G. Dickson, plant disease specialists.

In announcing the program, A. L. McMahon, county agent, reports that sessions will be devoted to the problems dealing with varieties, soils, seeds, diseases, harvesting and threshing. Attention also will be given to the maltster's problems of mellowness, plumpness, uniformity, freedom from dust as well as freedom from other grains.

Leaders of Homemakers Clubs to Meet Jan. 20

The first meeting of leaders for homemakers clubs of Outagamie county in 1939 will be held at the Appleton Vocational school at 10 o'clock Friday morning, Jan. 20, according to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent. Miss Gladys Stillman, extension, nutritionist from the college of agriculture will be in charge. Leaders have been reminded to bring their project leader books and luncheon dishes.

newspaper or magazine advertisement, radio announcement, billboard, and sales letter.

many Wisconsin farmers, desperately in need of immediate cash income, have been raising too much corn and small grain with resulting injury to their farms. Benefit payments, officials announce, will again be made for the reduction of acreages devoted to crops classed as soil depleting.

Rates at which payments will be computed in the north central area, including Wisconsin, are $1.10 an acre for general soil depleting crops in the acreage allotment and 50 cents an acre for soil conserving crops. Soil building practices will be computed at $1.50 per unit. In certain areas, increased credit will be allowed for applying limestone.

Payment rates for corn and potatoes on farms having acreage allotments for these crops it is said will be somewhat less in 1939 than in 1938. Payments for wheat are expected to be somewhat greater, because of a greater reduction in wheat acreage allotments.

Deductions
As in 1938, farmers who plant more than their acreage allotments of soil depleting crops will receive smaller payments. On a farm having a corn acreage allotment, the deduction will be at the rate of 40 cents a bushel. This means, committee explain, that for each acre planted over the allotment, the normal per acre yield of corn in bushels on the farm, multiplied by 40 cents, will be subtracted from the farm's corn payment.

For farms having wheat acreage allotments, the deduction will be at the rate of 50 cents a bushel. Wheat on all farms having a wheat acreage allotment, unless it is planted in mixture, will be charged to the farm allotment and will be classified as soil depleting. Where more general soil depleting crops are planted than were allowed under the farm allotment, a reduction of $8 will be made in the farm acreage payment for every acre over the allotment.

Nurse crops such as oats, barley, or rye are not to be classified as soil depleting providing they are cut for hay and a good stand of legumes or perennial grass is established. Payments of over $10,000 to any individual, partnership, or estate in any state or to any state or to any corporation in the United States are forbidden in 1939 for the first time.

Bill Masterson Joins Vike Five

Expected to Show
Against Carleton College Here Saturday

CHEERED by the news William "Bill" Masterson, husky center, again is ready for competition. Lawrence college basketball team is working for Saturday's game with Carleton college here. However, the Vikes aren't pointing to toss the Carls out of bounds because any school that already has played 12 or 13 games against some of the best universities in the middle west, really has a ball club.

Masterson

Masterson has been out of competition for a little more than a year due to a condition on the thigh bone which resulted in a painful injury if he happened to be hit on the thigh muscles, or if he happened to make a straining move. The condition has cleared to considerable degree, at least enough to allow him to play.

Big and rugged and with a good eye, Masterson will help the Vikes a lot. How much he can be worked into the swing of things before Saturday is a question. He needs a little more wind before being worked hard and it's probable that he'll change off with Schade at center. Later Coach Art Denney may shift his entire lineup to make use of his three tall men—Schade, Masterson and Bennetts.

Plan Delaying Game

Indications are that Coach Denney is planning a delaying game for Carleton, a game similar to that which worked successfully against Carroll. The Vikes showed last week against Coe that they couldn't handle the fast breaking game just yet and therefore it's out. Tomorrow-for-man the Carls will have it over Lawrence and the best way to play them is get the ball and hold it as much as possible.

Lawrence spent considerable time on fundamentals last evening as Denney attempted to smooth out a few rough spots. He had his reserves working just as hard as the regulars with only Wallie Cane missing. Cane suffered an ankle injury last Friday in the final practice before the Coe game. However, he is expected to be ready before Saturday.

Lawrence could use a couple more shots or some consistent shooting on the part of several regulars. In three games with DePaul, Carroll and Coe, the Vikes have counted 32 field goals in 164 tries for a .195 average. They've done better at the free throw mark with 29 tenses out of 52 for a .558 average.

The individual field scoring percentages for the three games follow:

	Trics G.	Pct.
Schuess	21	1.000
Buesing	15	.318
Schade	16	.250
Novakowski	20	.4
Jackson	41	.182
Faleide	36	.171
Cape	10	1.100
Bennetts	13	1.075

Free throw percentages:

	Trics G.	Pct.
Jackson	8	.875
Novakowski	10	.600
Buesing	10	.600
Bennetts	10	.500
Faleide	8	.375
Schade	3	.333
Kaemmer	2	.500

Points scored for the three games played by the Vikes: Miskison, DePaul, Carroll and Coe show Jackson leading with 20, Buesing and Faleide with 23 each, Novakowski with 16, Bennetts 14, Schade 14, and Cape 10, with several others showing less than 10 points.

Cowboy Max Baer Arrives In New York With New Gag

BY SID FEDER
NEW YORK (U)—Cowboy Max Baer, a range-riding with everything but the boss, is in town looking for fighting work. The one-time madcap of the hot spots insists he's a changed man—that Max, Jr., has taught him the error of his ways and all he wants is a chance to prove it. But when he hit town last evening, sporting a ten-gallon sombrero, something nifty and red in the way of bandannas, and a drawl that laid 'em in the aisles, the fight writers knew there was one thing even Max, Jr., the year-old apple of Madcap Maxie's eye, couldn't change even a little bit. He's still good for a laugh a minute. "Just elect me sheriff of this yere county," he told the boys in his best cowboy tongue, "and I'll run every fight manager right out of town. I'll also do the same for some of the fighters."

Hope Abandoned For Recovery of Colonel Ruppert

Last Rites Administered To Owner of New York Yankees

NEW YORK (U)—Genial Colonel Ruppert, beer and baseball magnate, lay near death today in his palatial Fifth avenue home.

The last rites of the Catholic church were administered, and attending physicians said there was no hope for recovery of the 71-year-old owner of the world champion New York Yankees.

But the stout little bachelor sportsman who built one of the nation's biggest fortunes—in brewing, baseball and real estate—fought strongly against an attack of phlebitis that has kept him from his office for nine months.

Rousing from a semi-coma last night he turned to Albert Brennan, his chief aide for 27 years, and said: "Family at Bedside."

"I've been sick a long time, haven't I, Al? But you know what? I'm going to get better."

Brennan said Ruppert was "resting easy" but was very weary.

The multi-millionaire's brother, George, and other members of the family had been summoned to his bedside.

Besides his chain of baseball properties, valued at more than $15,000,000, Ruppert owns a $35,000,000 brewery business—one of the largest in the world—and real estate holdings in New York second only to the Astor family.

Associates have estimated his net fortune at between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000.

Y.M.C.A. Plans Swimming Team

Organization Tonight: Weight Lifting Is New Sport at Association

Organization of a swimming team led by Ken Westberg, Midwest conference diving and backstroke champion when he was at Lawrence college last year, will be completed at a meeting called for 8 o'clock this evening at the Y.M.C.A. Westberg also will coach the swimmers.

Others reported interested in the team are Billy Morris, Farnham Johnson, Doug and Dick Fox, Bud Thomas and Carleton Fredricks. Green Bay and Fond du Lac Y.M.C.A. teams and a Sheboygan squad are seeking meets with the Appleton team.

A new sport at the association gymnasium this season is weight lifting. Although the class was started only recently, membership is increasing and an invitation to a meet has been received from Milwaukee Y.M.C.A. However, the downstate Appleton squad feels the company may be too fast for a starter.

Madison Y.M.C.A. has requested matches with the association handball and volleyball teams and a tentative date, Jan. 21, has been set.

Two more boys basketball leagues will start at the association Saturday morning. The Pioneer league will have 12 teams and the Friendly Indian league will have 4.

Handball activities will feature the annual tournaments, according to Ray Risch, physical director. He also reported that the 350 business men's class is so well attended that it may be necessary to split the group. Many businessmen are taking advantage of noon periods to play badminton or get in a handball game.

Hawkeye Star Is Leading Scorer

Stephens Tops Big Ten Cagers With 33 Points In Two Games

Chicago (U)—Iowa's Hawkeyes may have led their first two stars at the Big Ten basketball title race but that hasn't prevented their No. 1 man, lanky Ben Stephens, from taking the lead in the race for individual scoring honors.

The speedy Stephens has scored 33 points on 11 field goals and as many free throws for a 10 point lead over "Flick" Dehner, star Illinois center, who has dropped in eight field goals and seven foul shots. Tied for third and fourth places were Dick Lounsbury of Chicago and Johnny Kundla of Minnesota, each with a 21 point total.

All teams have played two games with the exception of Purdue and Ohio State. A Purdue star, Jewell Young, last season set an all-time Western conference individual scoring record of 184 points.

New York (U)—Despite reports to the contrary the Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis heavyweight title fight Jan. 25 will not be the championship bout for the champions. Jack Johnson and Battling Jim Johnson went ten rounds in Paris in 1910 for a gross gate of $3,500.

Yankees Seeking Replacement for 'Iron Man' Gehrig

Tommy Henrich, Outfielder, Is Considered Most Likely Prospect

NEW YORK (U)—The champion Yankees are counting on Lou Gehrig to play first base for only one more season, or two at the outside, so their scouts and minor league managers are under orders to come up with a slugging replacement for the 35-year old "iron man."

At present there are four prospects on tap, with Tommy Henrich, the club's hard-hitting right fielder, more than likely to be converted into Gehrig's successor.

The only flaw in this plan is the Yankees might not be able to spare Tommy from their outfield. It all depends on how well Charley Keller, the brilliant young outfielder from Newark, lives up to his press notices.

As additional insurance against the day when Gehrig's legs finally crack under the strain of playing a million-or-so consecutive games, the Yank scouts have reported enthusiastically on three of the Yank's chatters. They are Ed Levy, who was with Binghamton last year; Johnny Sturm, who was at Louisville on option, and Leonard Gabrielson, who slugged the ball for Seattle.

"All three are fine prospects, so good that we don't need to worry much about Lou's dropping out," said one of the undercover agents. "Both Levy and Gabrielson are big men and distance hitters of the Gehrig type, and Sturm hits well enough."

Meanwhile Lou, the object of all this solicitude, is devoting his days to fishing out in Long Island sound and makes no predictions on how much longer he will last. All he knows is that he still loves to play baseball, especially at his current salary of $39,000 a year.

Considered by many the greatest first-baseman who ever lived, the iron horse slowed perceptibly the last two campaigns, and for the first time in his big league career his batting average fell below .300 last year.

Oshkosh, Akron Meet Saturday

All-Stars Leading Western Division of National Pro League

Oshkosh — When the Oshkosh All Stars and the Akron, O. Firestones clash in a National Basketball league game at the Merrill Junior High school gym here Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock, it will be the first league encounter of the season between the quintets now leading the race in the Western and Eastern divisions of the circuit, respectively.

Oshkosh climbed to the top in the Western section, Monday evening by beating Sheboygan Redskins at the Milwaukee auditorium, 36 to 33, while the Firestones have been out in front in the Eastern throughout the season having won all of their eight league contests. The All Stars' record is four wins in seven starts in league competition.

It will not be the first time the teams have met this season, however. To warm up for the league campaign they played a four-game exhibition tour in as many cities of the state in November with the easterners taking three of these contests.

Firestones were runnersup to the Akron, O. Goodyears in the Eastern division last year, with Goodyears going on to take the National league title by beating Oshkosh, Western champions, in the playoffs.

Firestones have most of last year's veterans back with the addition of Paul Nowak and Johnny Moir, Notre Dame greats of the 1937-38 season. Moir is the Akron team's leading scorer, having averaged 10.37 points in the eight games played with Howard "Seup" Cable close behind with a 9-point average.

Marquette Will Meet Long Island in Garden

New York—Long Island University's basketball team, which has rolled over nine straight rivals, will meet its toughest test to far when it stacks up against Marquette tonight in the main event of a college doubleheader at Madison Square Garden. The opening game pairs St. John's of Brooklyn with St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

Marquette's man-to-man defense is likely to prove a stumbling block for the Blackbirds, who haven't faced anything like it this season. In addition Bill Chandler, the Milwaukee quintet's coach, has a veteran team that includes only one sophomore, Bill Komenich, and Komenich has been one of the Milwaukee mainstays in their last seven games.

They won six of their previous seven games and then, dropping the opener to Wisconsin and then coming back a week later to then revenge on the Badgers.

GRAPHIC GOLF

CHIPPING TECHNIQUE

The nearer the golfer comes to the green the further back toward the right foot the ball should rest in relation to the stance. The feet are placed closer together creating a narrow stance, which allows easier bodily movement. This is important for in the short shots to taking such a wide arc as characterizes the longer ranges. Still there should be some body action to keep the muscles from becoming restricted. One of greatest faults in golf is tension and even in a shot as short as the putt some bodily action is allowed to offset it.

By using some body turn in a shot of this type the swing can be accelerated more gradually and the clubhead brought onto the ball more precisely. Using an arm motion only, the golfer would have to swing more quickly to gain as much power and haste here often means waste. Let the clubhead float onto the ball on the downward swing, its position near the right foot facilitates this, and the loft of the clubhead will raise the ball quickly.

Armstrong Beats Baby Arizmendi In Hectic Battle

Fighters Stand Toe to Toe And Trade Blows For 10 Rounds

BY ROBERT MYERS
LOS ANGELES—(U.P.) Henry Armstrong, champion of the world's welter and lightweight boxers, successfully fought off the challenge of Baby Arizmendi, the rugged little Mexican, in their fifth encounter last night.

Duplicating their last two clashes, it was a gruelling battle for 10 rounds that kept more than 10,000 spectators in an uproar, with both fighters standing toe to toe, shoulder to shoulder, like two tiny bulls and hammering Henry emerging the winner by a decisive but hard earned margin.

The Tampico kid left the ring a beaten man, one side of his face covered with blood and cheers from his countrymen ringing in his ears, but he could point to a record unequalled by anyone else in the fight game.

Armstrong Boomed
He had just finished his 52nd round opposite Henry Arizmendi, who has never a knockdown scored against him; nor had he been seriously hurt.

In the final counting it was Armstrong's relentless and more powerful punches that brought him Referee George Blake's decision. Boomed several times for his jerky shoulder movements in the clinches and his bobbing head, Armstrong lost at least one round for accidentally butting.

The bout was billed as a welterweight title match. Armstrong weighed 134, Arizmendi 135, just over the lightweight limit.

Gate receipts totaled more than $25,000.

BEAR FACTS

Brulins Are Fussy
By Frank Ripley

HATS off to the sportsman who is able to bag a black bear. The feat is not particularly dangerous but offers a demonstration of unusual patience and skill on the part of a nimrod. A black bear is just about as clever at keeping out of sight as any animal on the American continent and is a worthy trophy for any gen. In spite of his bulky appearance he is neither stupid nor slow. His actions are cagey and he can get over the ground at an amazing rate of speed. When an intruder comes poking around, Mr. Black Bear goes places.

A black bear may not have the keenest sight in the animal world, but his nose or his ears seem to be sensitive enough. Whoever warns him does it affectively enough to apprise him of danger. His ability as a speedster does the rest. The writer has spent many a month and year in bear country without seeing any of the black fellows. Occasionally a break will come when several will be seen in a week, but in the main the black bear is mighty elusive.

Widely Distributed

Before this continent was settled, black bears were distributed over practically all the forested land. They were found down south in Florida and in the north almost to the Arctic circle. They are still found in the less settled regions of the central states and to some extent in the South. They are quite numerous in the West and Northwest.

Because the black bear is usually a loner and because he is shy, he seldom gives the hunter a close shot. He may weigh as much as 500 pounds and is a tough customer to bring down. It takes a fairly powerful rifle to put him out of commission. High killing power is necessary. Many use deer rifles for bear hunting, but something heavier is more practical.

Bear rifles should lend themselves to quick action, and for that reason open sights are more desirable than telescopic sights. Lever action bear rifles are the most popular in the West and Northwest while pump action is more popular in the South.

Recommended as lever action rifles are the Winchester Model 64 in either the 30-30 or the 32 special, the Savage model 99-R or 99-RS in the 300 caliber. The Winchester model 71 in 348 caliber and the 95 model on 30-40 caliber are good.

game and 512 series and W. Suren a 186 game for the Blacks. C. Prashler had a 178 and 475 for the Reds. In the other match, the Browns tipped the Grays in two games. E. Wittenberg had a 151 and a 473 for the Browns while J. Stroebel showed a 196 and 494 for the Grays.

Story of Jerusalem

III--Titus Attacks Jerusalem

Jerusalem! How much that name meant to the ancient Jews! How much it means to the Jews today! The ancient Jews did not want to be under the rule of the Romans, and in the year 66 they rose in revolt. A Roman army was driven from Jerusalem.

Behind their strong walls, the people of Jerusalem felt fairly safe, and for a time they suffered no harm. Then the Roman emperor sent a large army to lay siege to the city.

It so happened that many thousands of Jews from other places were in Jerusalem at the time. They had gathered there for the Passover.

In command of the Roman legions was Titus, age 30, the son of the Roman emperor. At a later date, he was himself to be the ruler of the empire. Besides his Roman soldiers he had Syrians and Arabs as allies.

In company with 600 cavalymen, Titus made a trip around the walls of Jerusalem. He wanted, if possible, to find a place where the walls were weak. Suddenly a gate was flung open, and out rushed a thousand or more Jewish soldiers, shooting arrows, and hurling darts and spears, at the surprised Romans.

Titus was wounded, but saved himself by galloping away. Some of the cavalymen fell to the ground, but others escaped.

"Caesar is running," shouted the Jews. "Jehovah is with us! He will put down our enemies!"

In the days which followed, Titus ordered his men to build a fort at the base of the Mount of Olives. He expected the siege to last a long time, and wanted to be safe from a sudden attack by the Jews. The fort was hardly begun when the Jews did sally forth, and it took all the soldiers Titus could bring to the spot to beat them back.

Battering rams and siege towers were moved toward the city walls. Closer and closer they came. Some of the siege towers were 90 feet high, and they must have been a terror to those who watched from behind the city gates.

A gate was opened, and out came a band of brave men, each carrying a torch. The plan was to set fire to the towers and battering rams. Some fell dead or wounded under a rain of arrows and darts, but others had almost reached the towers when cavalymen galloped to the spot and drove them back. Several were captured, and the first prisoner was crucified, as a warning to the stubborn defenders.

The Romans moved in on Jerusalem. When they came close, large boulders and boiling oil were dropped from the walls, but this did not stop them. They clambered over the outermost walls, and became masters of the suburbs of Jerusalem. Yet it was not the end. There was another wall barrier for the main part of the city, and the great walls of Herod's Temple could be defended.

Holds Technology Cause of Current European Crises

U. W. Professor Says 'Machine Age' Is Source Of Trouble

Neenah — Professor Howard J. McMurray of the University of Wisconsin extension division blamed technology for the present European crisis in the first of a series of lectures on world affairs at the Kimberly school.

More than 65 persons attended the opening lecture which was sponsored by the school of vocational and adult education in cooperation with the Wisconsin university extension division. The next lecture will be at 7:30 Tuesday night, Jan. 17, at Kimberly school. Professor McMurray will discuss "The Problem from the Standpoint of the Democracies and Russia."

"The machine age is dominating the present difficulties in Europe, for technology is making things grow so as to cause changes in the economic situations," the university professor said. "Adjustments, however, would prevent this," he pointed out, "but there isn't time or the world isn't taking time for adjustments."

The influence of the seven powers which dominate the world today is being felt in the present crisis, the professor said, and that influence is really causing the conflict in political and economic systems and natural resources in the countries.

He pointed out that while Russia and the United States practically are independent as far as resources are concerned, other countries such as Brazil need coal and minerals which are the strength of the industrial nations.

BACK TO CLASSES

Prof. Felix Frankfurter, President Roosevelt's latest nominee to the Supreme Court, assumed this lecture pose when he returned to his Harvard Law School classes in Cambridge, Mass., for the first time since his nomination.

IN CAST OF 'STAND UP AND FIGHT'

Wallace Beery and Robert Taylor are co-starred in "Stand Up and Fight," thrill crowded drama of the adventurers who built the west. Florence Rice provides the romantic interest in a cast of thousands that includes Helen Broderick and Charles Bickford. The picture comes to the Rio theater Friday.

On the same program is the latest of the Charlie Chan stories, "Charlie Chan in Honolulu," with Sidney Toler in the title role for the first time.

By Jimmie Fidler
Hollywood—Consider the case of Allan Jones—handsome, talented and likeable. Prior to his recent split with M-G-M, he had spent a year on the shelf.

Metrol-Goldwyn-Mayer, with the biggest star roster in the business, couldn't find a place for him on its 1938 program, being under exclusive contract to that studio, he couldn't actively shop for jobs elsewhere. The net result was two-edged; Metrol-Goldwyn-Mayer lost the equivalent of twice that amount through the forgetfulness of his one-time fans, who cannot be expected to worship "dark" stars.

His case is typical of the senseless waste that goes on day after day in this business. Almost every major lot has its quota of Allan Joneses, drawing tremendous salaries for doing exactly nothing—and meanwhile worrying themselves sick because no salary can atone for the quick oblivion that overtakes entertainers who are too long out of the limelight. And while those stars worry, the producers are paying the penalty for their insane shopping sprees by piling the floor, dithering about the increasing amounts of red ink on their ledgers and wondering where they are going to promote finance for the next years pictures. any wonder that hard-headed financiers, trained to believe that every employee should show his employer a cash profit on the salary paid him, are shying away from movie investments when they see the biggest studios wasting millions every year on stars, executives and directors they can't use?

Odd-FORMATION: Tom Ricketts, currently playing a role in Universal's "Son of Frankenstein," was the same studio's ace director just twenty-six years ago. Metro officials rate Wallace Beery—not Greta Garbo—as their home temperament problem child. Bela Lugosi is a political exile—his native Hungary is closed to him because of his participation in a post-war revolution. Jeffrey Lynn has had a play accepted by a Broadway producer. Mrs. Pat O'Brien is the silent partner in one of Hollywood's better dress shops.

Studio taboos prevent screen stars from endorsing any patent medicine, undergarment or alcoholic beverage. Incongruities: Bob Hope, who never wears a hat, has had one named for him by a local chain of haberdasheries. Edward G. Robinson speaks 6 languages fluently and four passably—which puts him ten up on a good many prominent Hollywoodites. All telegrams from Dorothy Kent are signed "Me." Donald Crisp was an Allied spy during the World war.

Nigel Bruce is known to all his intimates as "Willie." John Garfield celebrates two birthdays—March 4 and 5. He was born either a few minutes before or after midnight and his parents were never able to remember which. In Arthur Treacher's new home, there's a milk-bottle penny recipe in each room and a sign requesting all guests to contribute to Treacher's pet charity, a Catholic orphanage. The father you see on your screen hero's handsome puss in shaving scenes, is whipped cream. Jeanette MacDonald always puts stamps on her letter upside down as a friendly gesture to Lady Luck.

the year. Three of the special meetings were held jointly with the Village Board at Little Chute. The purpose of these meetings was to draw up a contract for the labor and the financing of a sewer project whereby the sanatorium sewerage could be

One year ago your board allocated $10,000.00 for the construction of said sewer. It was understood that if the work of construction could be made a W. P. A. project that the total cost to the county would approximate $7,000.00. The project was approved by the W. C. Board of Supervisors and the Village Board of Little Chute provided for a payment to that village of $6,700.00, which sum included payments for material, right-of-way, etc. At this time the plant is nearing completion and the county will amount to the $6,000.00 already paid to Little Chute, and an additional $700.00 for engineer's fees and incidental, making a total of $7,400.00.

General Items.—General items, mostly for replacements, include $440.00 for a refrigerator, $141.00 for mattresses, $349.00 for an auto, $537.00 for parts to the X-ray machine, and $63.70 for insurance on the auto.

For the fiscal year the state has contributed its full share of seven dollars per week for each patient, where in previous years it has been less, owing to the allowance each sanatorium received in the distribution of a fixed sanatorium budget.

In the estimating of our per capita costs the state has permitted us to take into account a five per cent depreciation charge on the cost of all buildings and attached structures that have been added since 1927. This is a partial concession which the sanatoria of the state have been advocating and permits a more equitable charge for patients outside of our own county.

There was a slight decrease over last year in our per capita work per week—from $18.17 last year to $18.11 the past year. It is observed, however, that the operation of the sanatorium is being carried on efficiently and in an up-to-date manner.

For your further information concerning some of the medical activities in the institution, we refer you to the report of the Medical Director which we transmit herewith.

We wish to remind you that the term of Mr. Wynmoun as trustee of the county expires January 1, 1928 and it will be necessary to appoint his successor at your present meeting.

No. 38. Report of the County Highway Commission read. (Complete report on file in the County Highway Department.)

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF OUTAGAMIE COUNTY, WISCONSIN.

Gentlemen:

Your County Highway Commission hereby submits the following report of the construction and maintenance work of the County Highway Department for the past season, and in answer to your recommendation for highway work for the coming season.

We shall not make a report of the expenditures for the various activities, as the County Highway Commissioner's report gives the revenues and disbursements in details.

During the past year, we made several inspection trips over the State Highway, and found the work being done by the county and construction work progressing in a satisfactory manner.

The following is a report of the activities on the State and County Trunk System during the past year:

The following contracts were awarded by the State Highway Commission of Wisconsin for projects in Outagamie County:

1. A contract for the construction of a bridge between U. S. 47 and T. 47, was awarded to John F. Bloomer for the over-arch over the C. & N. W. R. tracks, and the Allied Contracting Company for the construction of the bridge.

The following improvements were authorized by the State Highway Commission and the work was done by State crews:

1. Scarifying and placing a bituminous mat on State Trunk Highway No. 47, extending from the Shawano County line, a distance of 1.1 miles.

2. Replacing a narrow bridge on State Trunk 47, just north of Black Creek with three 26 inch metal culverts.

3. Widening Mill Street Curve on State Trunk 43, in the vicinity of the intersection with concrete and putting on a 6" concrete curb.

Gentlemen:

HIGHWAYS. In the opinion of various city and village supervisors the existing system for the distribution of money spent for highways in the county is not altogether fair and just, since it discriminates against the cities and villages of the county, and the Board has endeavored to make a more equitable system by study and survey of the problem; therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, that before the adjournment of the current session of the board, the County Board shall consist of three (3) supervisors from the cities and villages to study this problem in conjunction with the Highway Committee, said committee to report back to the Board at the mid-winter session.

Respectfully submitted.

No. 106. Communication from Geo. M. Keith, state pension registrar, regarding appointment of county pension director, read.

Mr. Thomas O'Connor, Chairman
County Pension Committee
Appleton, Wisconsin

Source :

This relates to your inquiry of the procedure by which the County Board of Supervisors shall, under the provisions of section 10-10, Wis. Stat., direct their funds to the head of the pension department if such be established in lieu of the alternative arrangement of leaving the administration under the control of the courts.

The first instance permit us to point out that the law clearly and emphatically confers upon the County Board of Supervisors both the responsibility and authority to determine whether two years ago the administrative machinery should be established, and consistent thereto the personnel, their qualifications, compensation and duties. Therefore, the State Pension Department is wholly unauthorized in its attempt to undertake to tell the County Board of Supervisors of Outagamie County or any other county how they must proceed in carrying out the law. We feel that we have no right to ask you to assist you in this matter.

The first concept that we wish to mention is that there should be continuity insofar as possible in the policy followed by the County Board of Supervisors in the handling of the pension as we have a third partner in this program, to-wit the Federal Social Security Board, and we have a plan under which federal funds are available provided we live up to the plan. We must recognize that this third partner who contributes the larger share of the cost demands that certain requirements be met in order to obtain the federal aid. It is our duty to make a satisfactory administration within a county if personal work be continued during the period of their competent and satisfactory performance of duties.

As far as the selection of personnel is concerned, there are obvious two procedures in the county board to choose between in fulfilling the obligation for the setting up of the required administrative machinery. One is to elect all of the personnel, or at least the director of popular vote of the county board. For this procedure, there are no doubts or recommendations. However, there is the danger that the incumbent administrator will not be able to carry out his duties particularly in view of the meeting of the county board, to canvassing for votes and support to assure himself of reelection.

The second procedure is for the county board to vest in a committee the authority and responsibility for selecting an administrator and seeing to it that the functions shall be carried out. This latter arrangement seems to offer considerable advantage in that the county board committee will presumably maintain sufficiently frequent contact with the administrator to see whether the program is functioning in the proper manner. Moreover, if this advisory committee is properly constituted, this authority is in constant contact, the program is subject to surveillance and if it starts breaking down at any point, immediate action can be initiated by the committee rather than waiting for the next meeting of the county board. In other words, the administrator is subject to constant and continuing supervision and check as to the fulfillment of his duties, whereas in the case of the county board, the administrator is not checked until when he is elected by the county board in annual meeting to re-elect him or to elect a successor.

Experience has shown that a committee of the county board in the selection of an administrator has been very satisfactory under the present arrangement where the authority for selecting a director and personnel is vested in a committee of the county board.

At this juncture the State Pension Department should express a word of appreciation both to the County Board and to the County Highway Committee for the excellent cooperation and cooperative attitude manifested at all times in attempting to carry out the duties of the county board.

We recommend consideration of the last mentioned procedure, but wish to make it clear that the County Board of Outagamie County is by no means endeavoring to act in this manner as it sees fit in this connection.

Very truly yours,
George M. Klein,
Supervisor of Pensions.

Mr. Davis
This being no objection, same was received and placed on file.

Next order of business—Election of Pension Director.

No. 108. Communication from the Outagamie County Medical Society read. (Care of indigents throughout the county.)

November 28, 1938

Executive Committee.

Genlemen: This communication is to inform your committee that a group of physicians have recently met informally to discuss medical, surgical and hospital care of the indigent, at the least, possible expense to the county.

This group of physicians respectfully requests that the Outagamie County Board hold in abeyance any long term method of providing medical care for indigent patients.

It is planned to present to the County Board as soon as possible, a comprehensive plan which will adequately take care of the medical requirements of the indigent of all municipalities, including Grand Chute, Kaukauna, Appleton and Appleton County. It is also planned to present a contract approved by the Outagamie County Medical Society, including a contract price to render and hospital care.

plan, if approved by the medical society and the County Board, will eliminate the need for county and city physicians and enable the medical society to render the same service to the indigent from the physician of their own choice. It will require that service be rendered only upon presentation of a requisition executed by the medical society.

We invite that your committee and the County Board give this matter their serious consideration.

Victor F. Marshall, A. Rector, J. B. MacLaren, E. L. Bolton.

Same was referred to the Executive Committee and District Attorney.

Fathers and Sons Hear Peace Plea at Methodist Dinner

Dr. Culver Urges Work to Remove Causes Threat of War

New London — "Let us fathers strive to make it impossible for our boys ever again to go to war, let us work to remove the causes and threat of war," Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of the Appleton Methodist church, pleaded in a talk on "The Price of Peace" before the eighty-third anniversary Father-Son banquet at the Methodist church here last night. About 150 persons were present at the first annual dinner.

The price of peace is not near as great as the cost of war, and peace is much more desirable, the speaker declared. He advocated a secretary of peace in the president's cabinet with a modest budget of 100 million dollars a year, the cost of only one modern super battleship, for the promotion and extension of peace in the world.

Roughly that 100 million dollars would support a national staff of workers in every state, free distribution of peace promoting newspapers, magazines, radio programs and motion pictures; it could provide for the interchanging of hundreds of students and professors between the United States and foreign countries to better understand each other's problems, and would support a hundred summer camps for 40,000 boys and girls each year, according to Dr. Culver.

Scores Tariff Walls
Dwelling briefly on the economic phases of the threatening European situation, the speaker declared there can be no world peace as long as each country strives to live unto itself and shut itself up behind high tariff walls. The free exchange of goods is essential, he declared. Setting a high tariff is as good as pointing a gun at your neighbor, he declared.

A nation will fight before it will starve and today of the 25 raw materials essential to life, 21 are found only in the four big powers, the United States, France, Great Britain and Russia. Italy, Japan, and Germany among them possess only the other four and they must be given a chance to buy, Dr. Culver pointed out.

"We can not get peace by just wishing or hoping for it but by doing something about it," the speaker said. Modern war is more horrible than ever and kills everybody. Nobody wants to make the world safe for democracy has only jeopardized it and made it safe for dictators," he declared.

Sparks May Start War
Preparedness which continually demands greater armament, Dr. Culver continued, only promotes war and makes the world more dangerous. When the world finally becomes bristling with armaments, it will take only the least spark to touch off another world conflict, he maintained.

Take the profit from war and there will be fewer conflicts, in the speaker's opinion. He declared the speakers' makes are industrialists without a country and will sell to friend and foe alike for huge profits. In the United States alone the world war produced 21,000 new millionaires while American doughboys gave their lives in France, he related. He painted a verbal picture of the horrors of war in contrast to its fleeting "glory."

It cost $25,000 to kill every boy lost in the last great war, the speaker figured, and the total cost of 337 billions of dollars would provide untold luxuries for the world today, he pointed out. Major projects would be a $4,000 home for every family in the seven leading nations of the world and million dollar universities and hospitals in every leading city.

Judge Is Toastmaster
Judge A. M. Scheller of Waupaca acted as toastmaster and Phil Court, president of the Methodist Men's club which sponsored the dinner, presided. The meal was served by the Dorcas society of the church.

The Rev. R. R. Holliday, pastor in a short welcome praised the spirit of good fellowship expressed by the attendance at the dinner and urged promotion of the spirit in the community throughout the year.

Entertainment consisted of a baritone solo by Wilton Quaint, accompanied by Miss Marie Hanke; reading of an original poem "Daddy and Dad," by its composer, for the occasion, Dr. G. E. Woodruff; selections by a trombone trio including Tim Kelleck, Lyle Quint and Donald Huber; and songs by an adult male quartet including Phil Court, Ben Andrews, Wendell Maxted and the Rev. R. R. Holliday. James Christensen represented the sons on the program with a bit of wit and poetry.

The English language is spoken by more than 224,000,000 people, of which more than half are Americans.

New London Office
News and Circulation departments of the Appleton Post-Crescent are represented in New London by Alvin J. Brault, 103 E. Cook street. # Keith Pahl Wants To Bowl Winner of Martzahl-Spang Feud

New London—Keith Pahl, 18, New London's youngest ace kugler yesterday issued a challenge to the winner of the Spang-Martzahl pin feud now raging between the 17-year-old Menasha youth, Florian Spang, and 18-year-old Robert Martzahl of Kaukauna. Pahl challenges the winner to a 10-game home and home match. Spang led Martzahl by 46 pins in the first block of games rolled at Kaukauna last Saturday and the final series will be rolled this Saturday on the Hendy alleys at Menasha.

Pahl, last year's city singles championship, set two all-time records on the New London alleys last November with a 3-game series of 714 and 6-game total of 1,328. He rolls in the Business Men's Major league and Waupaca County classic league, averaging 179 pins for 30 games in county competition.
